"DOUBLE PLAY."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY AN OLD SPORT.

We stand on ground to base ball goers dear,
(Admission fifty cents), from far and near
They come, and some bet money on the match,
Yet know that both the "nines" are "on the catch."

In uniform instead of reg'lar clothes,
Prepared with clubs and furnished well with hose,
The "team" advance; the word is, "Clear the field!"
Which should to players merely harvest yield.

A pleasing picture, now, that level green,
Whereon the right nom. ment of heads are seen;
All smacks of bonding life, although 'tis said,
Before it has been hit, the ball is "dead."

Resolved the umpire strictly to obey,
They settle down to work when he cries "Play!"
With well poised bat and wisest look of owl,
Will "striker" hit a "fly," or knock a "foul?"

"Foul" after "foul" he strikes, and fielders chase,
(Such game, observe, is well entitled "base"),
At last hits "fair," but this the very worst—
The umpire now decides him "out at first."

Good tempered ballists these, beyond dispute,
"Put out" they often are, and still are mute;
However "scored," serene in outward show,
They suffer and are strong in "wildest throw."

Fine points were made—so fine are seldom seen—
And errors, too, though few and far between;
One gallant "missed" a "foul" that caught his eye—
A "fair" one, "muffed," uncared for, passed him by.

Another, working hard, had "earned" a "bag,"
But "second" urged to "steal," he chose to lag;
Would take no chance, nor venture more to roam—
Swift "liner" then was sent to "bring him home."

But quickly wrecked was faith in this relief,
By "double play" all "hands" were brought to grief;
Their backers in the "pools" were swamped and sunk—
They, twigging "catch" by "centre," muttered "skunk!"

The wounded "ducks" in that productive play
Encounter'd "roosters" lively "on the lay,"
And "goose egg" oft scooped in: when all was o'er,
Just nine of such set down made up their score.

Ere this, no rival's "oyster" they had been,
Ne'er peppered thus and wholly gobbled in,
They could but hope next time to come off best—
Eggs-ample set might feather then their nest.

Quite sudden finish "short stop" put to fun,
And started off the crowd on homeward "run,"
Went up in hollow air the final shout,
The flags came down, the last to leave "got out."

GAMBLERS' LUCK.

It might be supposed that those who are most familiar with the actual results which present themselves in a long series of chance games would form the most correct views respecting the conditions on which such results depend—would be, in fact, freest from all superstitious ideas respecting chance or luck. The gambler who sees every system—his own infallible system included—foiled by the run of events, who witnesses the discomfiture of one gamester after another that for a time had seemed irresistibly lucky, and who can number by the hundred those who have been ruined by the love of play, might be expected to recognize the futility of all attempts to anticipate the results of chance combinations. It is, however, but too well known that the reverse is the case. The more familiar a man becomes with the multitude of such combinations, the more confidently he believes in the possibility of foretelling—not, indeed, any special event, but the general run of several approaching events. There has never been a successful gambler who has not believed that his success (temporary though such success ever is, where games of pure chance are concerned), has been the result of skillful conduct on his own part, and there has never been a ruined gambler (and ruined gamblers are to be counted by thousands), who has not believed that when ruin overtook him he was on the very point of mastering the secret of success. It is this false confidence which gives to gambling its power of fascinating the lucky as well as the unlucky. The winner continues to tempt fortune, believing all the while that he is exerting some special aptitude for games of chance, until the inevitable change of luck arrives, and thereafter he continues to play because he believes that his luck has only deserted him for a time, and must presently return. The unlucky gambler, on the contrary, regards his losses as sacrifices to insure the ultimate success of his "system," and even when he has lost his all, continues firm in the belief that had he had more money to sacrifice he could have found fortune to his side forever.

Houden, in his interesting book, Les Tricheries des Grecs devoilees, has given some amusing instances of the fruits of long gambling experiences. "Every game of chance," says this authority, "presents two kinds of chances which are very distinct—namely those relating to the person interested, that is the player; and those inherent in the combinations of the game." That is, we are to distinguish between the chances proper to the game, and those depending on the skill of the player. Proceeding to consider the chances proper to the game itself, our friendly cheat sums them all up in two rules. First—"Though chance can bring into the game all possible combinations, there are, nevertheless, certain limits at which it seems to stop: such, for instance, as a certain number turning up ten times in succession at roulette; this is possible, but it has never happened." Secondly—"In a game of chance, the oftener the same combination has occurred in succession, the nearer we are to the certainty that it will not recur at the next cast or turn up. This is the most elementary of the theories on probabilities; it is termed the maturity of the chances," (and he might have added that the belief in this elementary theory had ruined thousands.) "Hence," he proceeds, "a player must come to the table not only 'in luck,' but he must not risk his money except at the instant prescribed by the rules of the maturity of the chances." Then follow the precepts for personal conduct—"For gaming prefer roulette, because it presents several ways of staking your money—which permits the study of several. A player should approach the gaming-table perfectly calm and cool—just as a merchant or tradesman in treaty about any affair. If he gets into a passion it is all over with him at once, and the blind luck—for the demon of bad luck invariably pursues a passionate player. Every man who finds a pleasure in playing runs the risk of losing. A prudent player, before undertaking any thing, should put himself to the test to discover if he is 'in vein' or in luck. In all doubt he should abstain. There are several persons who are constantly followed by bad luck, let to such I say—sweeping. Stubbornness at play is ruin. Remember that Fortune does not like people to be overjoyed at her favors, and that she prepares bitter deceptions for the imprudent who are intoxicated by success. Lastly, before risking your money at play, study your 'vein,' and the different probabilities of the game—termed, as aforesaid, the maturity of the chances."

Before proceeding to exhibit the fallacy of the principles here enunciated—principles which have worked incalculable mischief—it may be well for us to sketch the history of the scamp who enunciated them—so far, at least, as his gambling successes are concerned. His first meeting with Houdin took place at a subscription ball, where he managed to fleece Houdin "and others to a considerable amount, contriving a dexterous escape when detected. Houdin afterwards fell in with him at Spa, where he found the gambler in the greatest poverty, and lent him a small sum—to practice his grand theories." This sum the gambler lost, and Houdin advised him "to take up a less dangerous occupation." It was on this occasion, it would seem, that the gambler revealed to Houdin the particulars recorded in his book. "A year afterwards Houdin unexpectedly fell in with him again; but this time the fellow was transformed into what is called a demi-millionaire,' having succeeded to a large fortune on the death of his brother, who died intestate. According to Houdin, the following was the man's declaration at the auspicious meeting—'I have,' he said, 'completely renounced gaming. I am rich enough; and care no longer for fortune. And yet,' he added proudly, 'if I now cared for the thing, how I could break those boasted banks in their pride, and what a glorious vengeance I could take of bad luck and its inflexible agents! But my heart is too full of my happiness to allow the smallest place for the desire of vengeance!'" Three years later he died; and Houdin informs us that he left the whole of his fortune to various charitable institutions, his career after his acquisition of wealth going far to demonstrate the justice of Becky Sharp's theory that it is easy to be honest on five thousand a year.

Taking in their order the gambling superstitions which have been presented above, we have first of all, to inquire what truth there is in the idea that there are limits beyond which pure chance has no power of introducing peculiar combinations. Let us consider this hypothesis in the light of actual experience. Mr. Steinmetz tells us that, in 1813, a Mr. Ogden wagered 1,000 guineas to one that "seven" would not be thrown with a pair of dice ten successive times. The wager was accepted (though it was egregiously unfair) and strange to say the opponent threw "seven" nine times running. At this point Mr. Ogden offered 470 guineas to be off the bet. But all appeared desirous, though the sum offered was far beyond the real value of his chance. He cast yet once more, and threw "nine," so that Mr. Ogden won his guineas.

Now here we have an instance of a most remarkable series of throws, the like of which has never been recorded before or since. Before those throws had been made, it might have been asserted that the throwing of nine successive "sevens" with a pair of dice, was a circumstance which chance could never bring about, for experience was as much against such an event as it would seem to be against the turning up of a certain number ten successive times at roulette. Yet experience now shows that the thing is possible; and if we are to limit the action of chance, we must assert that the throwing of "seven" ten times in succession is an event which will never happen. Yet such a conclusion obviously rests on as unstable a basis as the former, of which experience has disposed. Observe, however, how the two gamblers viewed this very eventuality. Nine successive "sevens" had been thrown; and if there were any truth in the theory of the maturity of the chances, the chance of throwing "seven" must have been regarded as all but certain that the next throw would not be a "seven." But a run of bad fortune had so shaken Mr. Ogden's faith in his luck (as well as in the theory of the maturity of the chances) that he was ready to pay 470 guineas (nearly thrice the mathematical value of his opponent's chance) in order to save his endangered thousand; and so confident was his opponent that the run of luck would continue that he declined this very favorable offer. Experience had in fact shown both the players that although "sevens" could not be thrown forever, yet there was no saying when the throw would change. Both reasoned probably that as an eighth throw had followed seven successive throws of "seven" (a wonderful chance), and as a ninth had followed eight successive throws (an unprecedented event), a tenth might well follow the nine (though hitherto no such series of throws had ever been heard of). They were forced, as it were, by the run of events to reason justly as to the possibility of a tenth throw of seven—nay, to exaggerate that possibility into probability, and it appears from the narrative that the strange series of throws quite checked the betting propensities of the bystanders, and that not one was led to lay the wager (which according to ordinary gambling superstition would have been a safe one) that the tenth throw would not give "seven."

Closely connected with the theory about the range of possibility in the matter of the chance combinations, is the theory of the maturity of chances—the most elementary of the theories on probabilities." It might safely be termed the most mischievous of gambling superstitions.

As an illustation of the application of this theory, we may cite the case of an Englishman, once well known at foreign gambling tables, who had based a system on a generalization of this theory. In point of fact the theory asserts that when there has been a run in favor of any particular event, the chances in favor of the event are reduced and, therefore, necessarily, the chances in favor of other events are increased. Now our Englishman watched the play at the roulette table for two full hours, carefully noting the numbers which came up during that time. Then, eschewing those numbers which had come up oftenest, he staked his money on those which had come up very seldom or not at all. Here was an infallible system, according to "the most elementary of the theories of probability." The tendency of chance results to right themselves, so that events equally likely in the first instance will occur an equal number of times in the long run, was called into action to enrich our gambler and to ruin the unlucky bankers. Be it noted in passing, that events do thus right themselves, though this circumstance does not operate quite as the gambler supposed, and can not be trusted to put a penny into any one's pocket. The system was tried, however, and instead of reasoning respecting its soundness, we may content ourselves with recording the result. On the first day our Englishman won more than seven hundred pounds in a single hour. "His exultation was boundless. He thought he had really discovered the 'philosopher's stone.' Off he went to his bankers, and transmitted the greater portion of his winnings to London. The next day he played and lost fifty pounds; and the following day he achieved the same result, and had to write to town for remittances. In fine, in a week he had lost all the money he had won at first, with the exception of fifty pounds, which he reserved to take him home; and being thoroughly convinced of the exceeding fickleness of fortune, he has never staked a sixpence since, and does all in his power to dissuade others from playing."

It may appear paradoxical to say that there is chance that results right themselves; nay, that there is an absolute certainty that in the long run they will occur as often (in proportion) as their respective chances warrant, and, at the same time, to assert that it is utterly useless for any gambler to trust to this circumstance. Yet not only is each statement true, but it is of first rate importance in the study of our subject that the truth of each should be clearly recognized.

That the first statement is true, will, perhaps, not be questioned. The reasoning on which it is based would be too abstruse for these pages; but it has been experimentally verified over and over again. Thus, if a coin be tossed many thousands of times, and the numbers of resulting "heads" and "tails" be noted, it is found, not necessarily that these numbers differ from each other by a very small quantity, but that their difference is small compared with either. In mathematical phrase, the two numbers are nearly in a ratio of equality. Again, if a die be tossed, say, six million times, although there will not, probably, have been exactly a million throws of each face, yet the number of the throws of each face will differ from a million by a quantity very small, indeed, compared with the total number of throws. So certain is this law, that it has been made the means of determining the real chances for an event, or of ascertaining facts which had been before unknown. Thus, De Morgan relates the following story in illustration of this law. He received it "from a distinguished naval officer, who was once employed to bring home a cargo of dollars." At the end of the voyage, he says, "it was discovered that in one of the boxes which contained them had been forced; and on making further search a large bag of dollars was discovered in the possession of some one on board. The coins in the different boxes were a mixture of all manner of dates and sovereigns, and it occurred to the commander, that if the contents of the boxes were sorted, a comparison of the proportions of the different sorts in the bag, with those in the box which had been opened, would afford strong presumptive evidence one way or the other. This comparison was accordingly made and the agreement between the distribution of the several coins in the bag and those in the box was such as to leave no doubt as to the former having formed a part of the latter." If the bag of stolen dollars had been a small one, the inference would have been unsafe, but the great number of dollars corresponded to a great number of chance trials; and as in such a large series of trials the several results would be sure to occur in numbers corresponding to their individual chances, it followed that the numbers of coins of the different kinds in the stolen lot would be proportional, or very nearly so, to the numbers of those respective coins in the forced box. Thus in this case the thief increased the strength of the evidence against him by every dollar he added to his ill gotten store.

If a person has tossed "heads" nine times running (we assume fair and lofty tosses with a well balanced coin), common sense teaches him as he is about to make a tenth trial, that the chances on that trial are precisely the same as the chances on the first. It would indeed have been rash for him to predict that he would reach that trial without once failing to toss "head;" but the thing has happened, the odds originally against it count for nothing. They are disposed of by known facts. We have said, however, that experience confirms our theory. It chances that a series of experiments have been made on coin tossing. Buffon was the experimentor, and he tossed thousands of times, noting always how many times he tossed "head" running, before "tail" appeared. In the course of these trials he many times tossed "head" nine times running. Now, if the tossing "head" nine times running rendered the chance of tossing a tenth head much less than usual, it would necessarily follow that in considerably more than one half of these instances Buffon would have failed to toss a tenth head. But he did not. We forget the exact numbers, but this we know, that in about half of the cases in which he tossed nine "heads" running, the next trial also gave him "head," and about half of these tossings of ten successive "heads" were followed by the tossing of an eleventh "head." In the nature of things this was to be expected.

And now let us consider the cognate questions suggested by our sharper's ideas respecting the person who plays. This person is to consider carefully whether he is "in vein," and not otherwise to play. He is to be cool and businesslike, for fortune is invariably adverse to an angry player. Steinmetz, who appears to place some degree of reliance on the suggestion that a player should be "in vein," cites in illustration and confirmation of the rule, the following instance from his own experience:—"I remember," he says, "a curious incident in my childhood which seems very much to the point of this axiom. A magnificent gold watch and chain were given toward the building of a church, and my mother took three chances, which were a very high price for the watch and chain being valued at more than £100. One of these chances was entered in my name, one in my brother's, and the third in my mother's. I had to throw for her as well as myself. My brother threw an insignificant figure; for myself I did the same; but, oddly enough, I refused to throw for my mother on finding that I had 'lost my chance, saying that I would wait a little longer—rather a curious piece of prudence" (read, rather, superstition) "for a child of thirteen. The raffle was with three dice; the majority of the chances had been thrown, and 'thirty-four' was the highest." (It is to be presumed that the three dice were thrown twice, yet "thirty-four" is a remarkable throw with six dice, and "thirty-six" altogether exceptional.) "I went on throwing the dice for amusement, and was surprised to find that every throw was better than the one I had in the raffle. I thereupon said, 'Now I'll throw for mamma.' I threw thirty-six, which won the watch! My mother had been a large subscriber to the building of the church, and the priest said that my winning the watch for her was quite providential. According to M. Houdin's authority, however, it seems that I only got into 'vein'—but how I came to pause and defer throwing the last chance has always puzzled me respecting this incident of my childhood, which made me great an impression ever to be effaced."

It is probable that most of our readers can recall some circumstance in their lives, some surprising coincidence, which has caused a similar impression, and which they have found it almost impossible to regard as strictly fortuitous.

In chance games especially, curious coincidences of the sort occur, and lead to the superstitious notion that they are not mere coincidences, but in some definite way associated with the face or fortune of the player, or else with some event which has previously taken place—as a change of seats, a new deal, or the like. There is scarcely a gambler who is not prepared to assert his faith in certain observances, whereby, as he believes, a change of luck may be brought about. In an old work on card games the player is gravely advised, if the luck has been against him, to turn three times round with his chair, "for then the luck will infallibly change in your favor."

Equally superstitious is the notion that anger brings bad luck, or, as M. Houdin's authority puts it, that "the demon of bad luck immediately pursues a passionate player." At a game of pure chance good temper makes the player careless under ill-fortune, but it cannot secure him against it. In like manner, passion may excite the attention of others to the player's losses, and, in any case, causes himself to suffer more keenly under them, but it is only in this sense that passion is unlucky for him. He is as likely to make a lucky hit when in a rage as in the calmest mood.

It is easy to see how superstitions such as these take their origin. We can understand that since one who has been unlucky in games of pure chance, is not antecedently likely to continue equally unlucky, superstitious observance is not unlikely to be followed by a seeming change of luck. When this happens the coincidence is noted and remembered, but failures are readily forgotten. Again, if the fortunes of a passionate player be recorded by dispassionate bystanders, he will not appear to be pursued by worse luck than his neighbors; he will be disposed to regard himself as the victim of unusual ill-fortune. He may, perhaps, register a vow to keep his temper in future; and then his luck may seem to him to improve, even though a careful record of his gains and losses would show no change whatever in his fortunes.

But it may not seem quite so easy to explain those undoubted runs of luck, by which players "in the vein" (as supposed) have broken gaming banks, and have enabled those who have followed their fortunes to achieve temporary success. The history of the notorious Garcia, and of others who, like him, have been for awhile the favorites of fortune, will occur at once to many of our readers, and will appear to afford convincing proof of the theory that the luck of such gamesters has had a real influence on the fortunes of the game. The following story gives an accurate and graphic picture of the way in which these "bank-breakers" are followed and believed in, while their success seems to last.

The scene is laid in one of the most celebrated German Kursaals:—

"What a sudden influx of people into the room! Now indeed, we shall see a celebrity. The right-haired young man coming toward us, and attended by such a retinue, is a young Saxon nobleman who made his appearance here a short time ago, and commenced his gambling career by staking very small sums; but, by the most extraordinary luck, he was able to increase his capital to such an extent that he now rarely stakes under the maximum, and almost always wins. They say that when the croupiers see him place his money on the table, they immediately prepare to pay him, without waiting to see which color has actually won, and that they have offered him a handsome sum down to desist from playing while he remains here. Crowds of people stand outside the Kursaal doors every morning, awaiting his arrival, and when he comes, following him into the room, and staking as he stakes. When he ceases playing they accompany him to the door, and shower on him congratulations and thanks for the good fortune he has brought them. See how all the people make way for him at the table, and how deferential are the subdued greetings of his acquaintances! He does not bring much money with him, his luck is too great to require it. He take some notes out of a case, and places maximums on the common chance, the color or eager hands are immediately outstretched from all parts of the table, heaping up silver and gold and notes on the spaces on which he has staked his money, till there scarcely seems room for another coin, while the other spaces on the table only contain a few florins staked by skeptics, who refuse to believe in the continuance of his luck. The narrative proceeds to describe his continued successes, until he rises from the table a winner of about one hundred thousand francs at that sitting.

The success of Garcia was so remarkable at times as to affect the value of the shares in the Privilegirte Bank ten or twenty per cent. Nor would it be difficult to cite many instances which seem to supply incontrovertible evidence that there is something more than common chance in the temporary successes of these (so called) fortunate men.

Indeed, to assert merely that in the nature of things there can be no such thing as luck that can be depended on even for a short time, would probably be quite useless. There is only one way of meeting the infatuation of those who trust in the fates of lucky gamesters. We can show that, granted a sufficient number of trials—and it will be remembered that the number of those who have risked their fortunes at roulette and rouge et noir is incalculably great—there must inevitably be a certain number who appear exceptionally lucky—further, that the odds are overwhelmingly against the continuance of play on the scale which prevails at the foreign gambling tables, without the occurrence of several instances of persistent runs of luck.

To remove from the question the perplexities resulting from the nature of the above named games, let us suppose that the tossing of a coin is to determine the success or failure of the player—that he will win if he throws "head." Now if a player tossed "head" twenty times running on any occasion it would be regarded as a most remarkable run of luck, and it would not be easy to persuade those who witnessed the occurrence that the thrower was not in some special and definite manner the favorite of fortune. We may take such exceptional success as corresponding to the good fortune of a "bank breaker." Yet it is easily shown that with a number of trials which must fall enormously short of the number of cases in which fortune is risked at foreign Kursaals, the throwing of twenty successive heads would be practically insured. Suppose every adult person in Britain—say 10,000,000 in all—were to toss a coin, each tossing until "tail" was thrown; then it is practically certain that several among them would toss twenty times before "tail" made its appearance. That is, practically about five millions would toss "head" once; about three and one half, or some two millions and a half, would toss "head" on the second trial; about a million and a quarter would toss "head" on the third trial; about six hundred thousand on the fourth; some three hundred thousand on the fifth; and by proceeding in this way—roughly halving the numbers successively obtained—we find that some eight or nine of the ten million persons would be almost certain to toss "head" twenty times running. It must be remembered that so long as the numbers continue large the probability that about half will toss "head" at the next trial amounts almost to certainty. For example, about 140 toss "head" sixteen times running; now it is utterly unlikely that of these 140, fewer than 40 will toss "head" yet a seventeenth time. But if the above process failed on trial to give even one person who tossed heads twenty times running—an utterly improbable event—yet the trial could be made four or five times, with practical certainty that not one or two, but thirty or forty persons would achieve the seemingly incredible feat of tossing "head" twenty times running. Nor would all these thirty or forty persons fail to throw even three or four "heads."

Now if we consider the immense number of trials made at gambling tables, and if we further consider the gamblers as in a sense typified by our ten millions of coin-tossers, we shall see that it is not merely probable but absolutely certain that from time to time there must be marvelous runs of luck at roulette, rouge et noir, hazard, faro, and other games of chance. Suppose that at the public gaming-tables on the continent there sit down each night but one thousand persons in all, that each person ventures but one napoleon each night, and that there are but one hundred gambling nights in the year—each supposition falling far below the truth—there are then one million ventures each year. It cannot be regarded as wonderful, then, that among the 365 persons who ventured each (on this supposition) during the last half century, there should be noted some runs of luck which on any single trial would seem incredible. On the contrary, this is so far from being wonderful that it would be far more wonderful if no such runs of luck had occurred. It is probable that if the actual number of ventures, and the circumstances of each, could be ascertained, and if any mathematician could deal with the tremendous figures in such a sort as to deduce the exact mathematical chance of the occurrence of bank-breaking runs of luck, it would be found that the antecedent odds were many millions to one in favor of the occurrence of a certain number of such events. In the simpler case of our coin-tossers the chance of twenty successive "heads" being tossed can be quite readily calculated. We have made the calculation, and we find that if the ten million persons had each two trials, the odds would be more than 10,000 to 1 in favor of the occurrence of twenty successive "heads" once at least; and only a million and a half need have a single trial each, in order to give an even chance of such an occurrence.

But we may learn a further lesson from our illustrative tossers. We have seen that granted only a sufficient number of trials, runs of luck are practically certain to occur; but we may also infer that no run of luck can be trusted to continue. The very principle which has led us to the conclusion that several of our tossers would throw twenty "heads" successively, leads also to the conclusion that one who has tossed heads twelve or thirteen times, or any other considerable number of times in succession, is not more (or less) likely to toss "head" on the next trial than at the beginning. About half, we said, in discussing the fortunes of the tossers, would toss "head" at the next trial; in other words, about half would fail to toss "head." The chances for and against these lucky tossers are equal at the next trial, precisely as the chances for and against the least lucky of the ten million tossers would be equal at any single tossing.

Yet, it may be urged, experience shows that luck continues; for many have won by following the lead of lucky players. Now we might at the outset point out that this belief in the continuance of luck is suggested by an idea directly contradictory to that on which is based the theory of the maturity of the chances. If the oftener an event has occurred, the more unlikely is its occurrence at the next trial—the common belief—then contrary to the common belief, the oftener a player has won (that is, the longer has been his run of luck), the more unlikely is he to win at the next venture. We cannot separate the two theories, and assume that the theory of the maturity of the chances relates to the play, and the theory of runs of luck to the player. The success of a player at any one trial—as distinctly an event—a chance event—as the turning up of ace or deuce at the cast of a die.

What then are we to say of the experience of those who have won money by following a lucky player? Let us revert to our coin-tossers. Let us suppose that the program of the venture in a given county is made known to a set of betting men in that county; and that when it becomes known that a person has tossed "head" twelve times running, the betting men hasten to back the luck of that person. Further, suppose this to happen in every county in England. Now we have seen that these persons are no more likely to toss a thirteenth "head" than they are to fail. About half will succeed and about half will fail. Thus about half their backers will win and about half will lose. But the successes of the winners will be widely announced; while the mischances of the losers will be concealed. This will happen—the like notoriously does happen—for two reasons. First, gamblers pay little attention to the misfortunes of their fellows; the professed gambler is utterly selfish, and, moreover, he hates the sight of misfortune, because it unpleasantly reminds him of his own risks. Secondly, losing gamblers do not like their losses to be noised abroad; they object to having their luck suspected by others, and they are even disposed to blind themselves to their own ill-fortune as far as possible. Thus, the inevitable success of about one-half of our coin-tossers would be accompanied inevitably by the success of those who "backed their luck," and the success of such backers would be bruited abroad and be quoted as examples; while the failure of those who had backed the other half, (whose luck was about to fail them), would be comparatively unnoticed. Unquestionably the like holds in the case of public gambling tables. If any doubt this, let them inquire what has been heard of those who continued to back Garcia and other "bank-breakers." We know that Garcia and the rest of these lucky gamblers have been ruined; they had risen too high and were followed too constantly for their fall to remain unnoticed. But what has been heard of those unfortunates who thre

☞ CORRESPONDENTS, advertisers, and all others writing in relation to matters connected with this or any other department of the CLIPPER, are respectfully requested to address their favors to the editor and proprietor, and thereby avoid omissions, mistakes and confusion, which are likely to occur when such communications are addressed to our assistants.

NOTICE.

ADVERTISERS must hand in their favors before 6 o'clock on Monday evening, in order to have them appear in that week's issue.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We never answer questions by mail. All addressed to us seeking information will be answered through this column only.

GRAND DUKE, Water Valley, Miss.—1. O'Baldwin came to this country in 1862. 2. There never was a cannon that fired a ball across the Channel from Dover to Calais; the belief is a popular error. 3. Gen. Wolfe was killed after scaling the Heights of Abraham. 4. The Red River is in water, and has several times been frozen so that people could walk across. The last time was during the winter of 1870-1871. 5. Mr. Ten Broeck went to England with American race horses in the fall of 1868, and won the Cesarewitch Stakes with Prioress in 1857; the Goodwood Stakes with Starke, in 1859, and the Goodwood Cup with the same horse in 1851. He also won other races with American horses.

J. D. Y., Baltimore, Md.—1. Australia was discovered by the Dutch and Spanish in 1606, but was probably known to the Chinese before that. 2. Dr. Livingstone went to Africa as a missionary in 1840, since which time, or shortly after, he has been more or less engaged in explorations of central Africa. 3. No explorers have not yet penetrated north further than about 82 degrees 7 minutes 30 seconds, in the Polaris. 4. The Antarctic circle as far as 78 degrees south. 5. Should be pronounced Eu-ro-pe-an. 6. There is a bare possibility. 7. No 8. Matthews is generally considered the better of the two.

OLD TIME, Albany.—1. Having called the bet, it is decided how many cards he drew before B bet. A was obliged to answer correctly. Failing to do so, B must have his money back. The rule is clear on this point. 2. Any player has a right to refuse betting on the next making a bet, may demand of the dealer how many cards he drew, and the latter must reply correctly. By raising his hand or making a bet the player forfeits the right to enquire, and renews the obligations to answer.

SPORT, London.—"A bets that B will be elected; C bets that D will be elected. D obtains the larger number of votes, but B protests the election on ground of frauds, such as repeating votes, taking fictitious names at polls, &c. The returning officer refuses to declare D's party. Should the money be paid until decision of such protest?".....The stakeholder must not give up the money until the certificate of election in favor of the candidate is received.

F. F., Hazleton, Pa.—The time of the Derby winners since Kettledrum's year (1863) is as follows:—Kettledrum, 2:43; Caractacus, 2:45½; Macaroni, 2:50½; Blair Athol, 2:43; Gladiateur, 2:46; Favonius, 2:50½; Cremorne, 2:45½; Julius Cæsar, 2:51; Hermit, 2:44; Pretender, 2:46; Lord Lyon, 2:44; Kingcraft, 2:45; Favonius, 2:50, and Cremorne, 2:45½. 2. There is no official time taken in England, and consequently no authentic mile record.

JACK, Cleveland.—"Suppose a man on 2d base. Striker bats fly to left field, which left fielder holds; the man on second runs from 2d to 3d on striker's hit; fielder returns ball quickly to 3d, which is held by the baseman before man from 2d arrives, but the runner is not touched by the ball. Should he be declared out?".....Certainly not. Had the ball been on 2d before runner returned, he would have been out.

BUCKWHEAT.—1. Can a striker, after having his 1st base given him, on a third called ball, make his 2d and 3d on the same ball at his own risk? 2. Is it in accordance with the regulations to call the first ball delivered to a striker under any circumstances, or to call a strike for the first ball delivered, even if it be over when a man is on the 1st base?.....1. He can run at his own risk. 2. No.

S. H., Chicago, Ill.—"A, B, C and D are playing casino. A plays an ace, building a four, and when his turn for playing comes again, instead of playing his four and taking in the tray and ace, he plays the other ace and re-builds his original build to a five. Has he a right to do this?".....No.

AN OLD MANAGER.—The seating capacity of Booth's Theatre is as follows:—Parquet, 522; dress circle, 441; 2d circle, 311; 3d circle, 426, and private boxes, 48, making a total of 1,748. The Academy of Music will seat 2,263, and the Grand Opera House, 1,883.

TRAP, Providence, R. I.—A vampire trap consists of two parts, opening in the centre like folding doors. Each of these on the part opposite the audience has a spring which causes the door to close immediately the person has passed through it. They are used chiefly in pantomimic and spectacular plays.

H.—The late Miss Adah Isaacs Menken first acted Mazeppa in the drama of that name at the Lyceum Theatre, Broadway, New York, June 3d, 1861. She first played the part in this city at the New Bowery Theatre, June 16th, 1862. She was not the first lady who acted that character.

JUNE 1st, Lynn Grove.—1. Arthur Chambers' height is 5 feet 3¾ inches, and his fighting weight at the present time is about 115lbs.; in England he used to fight at 116lbs., and we guess he could get down to that figure now without trouble. 2. Mike McCoosle was born on the 12th of October, 1841.

SPORT.—1. The fastest mile heat in trotting is 2:16¾, by Goldsmith Maid, Boston, Mass. 2. At seven up, if there are no cards out for cards, that player has a level ground, in which they are the cards are cut the dealer has no right to shuffle, but he has the privilege of the last shuffle.

WATER MELON.—The party who threw the lowest number, and who paid 75 cents for the good melon, is entitled to the melon that is to be given in exchange for the unripe melon. The others have no claim on it whatever, as the loser provided and paid for a good melon.

OLD PROSS, Fort Whipple, Va.—None of the party know the game, for, after A, the dealer, and B, the blind, had passed out without seeing C's straddle, A could not come in again, and C was entitled to the first bet, which he made, and the cards after they had been cut and dealt, and he loses his bet on this point.

KEXO.—If A bet B that the amount sold would be exactly $24,000 (which would be a very foolish bet to make), and it exceed the said figure, A loses, but if he wagered that the amt much would be sold, he wins.

BALDY, Boston.—He became invested in a fight between his sporting and those of Morrissey, who was distracted in his attention, and thus being repeatedly called without any response from Sullivan, the battle was decided in Morrissey's favor.

J. Young, Pittsburgh, Pa.—As the affairs mentions to have been conducted in a very loose manner, we cannot express any opinion on the point in dispute, which we do not clearly understand from the wording of your note.

H. E. K., Evansville, Ind.—Hotel or hall proprietors can hold an agent of a company responsible for debts incurred, unless the agent at the time of contracting such liabilities distinctly states that he is only the agent of his principal.

TEMPLETON JIT, New Orleans, La.—1. Viola is dead. She was the wife of Joseph Barrett, who is now in this city. 2. George Ryer is an excellent actor of old man characters. We do not know where he is engaged for the coming season.

THIRSTY, Chicago.—Your letter dated Chicago, Aug. 23d, seems to have "got off the track," as it is postmarked Pittsburgh, Aug. 30th, and did not reach us until Wednesday, Aug. 28th, too late to be of service.

UNO, Syracuse.—Your letter of last week was postmarked Brewerton, Aug. 26th, and of course did not reach us until the day after our issue to press had been printed. Had it been mailed on the 24th, it should have reached us in good season.

O. N., London, Eng.—You would not be required to pay any United States licenses. The act of congress authorizing them has been repealed. You would have only to pay a city or town license.

NEW ST. CHARLES, Chicago, Ill.—There is no basis for calculating the average distance walked in a game at billiards. French caroms, so there is no possible way of answering your question.

J. C. C., Baltimore.—1. At euchre each player can raise his cards as soon as the trump card is turned, especially on the second day, give each player the same number of cards in dealing; he cannot give one player two and the next three cards.

J. H. D.—After having made a build of "four," the player could not build on it with a five on his next play, making it "five;" he could, however, take it with the four he held in his hand.

LOU WALKER, Jersey.—"In Casino, A puts the six on the four and deuce, and makes them sixes. B puts the deuce on the sixes and makes them eight. Was B correct?".....B is wrong; he cannot do it.

S. A. C., Cumberland, Md.—Upon making inquiry at headquarters, we learn that Budd Doble's father, Wm. Doble, drove Goldsmith Maid at Mystic Park, Boston, when she made her fastest time, 2:16¾.

TOBIAS SHORTCUT, New Orleans, La.—1. We do not make comparisons in this department as to the relative merits of public performers. 2. Dan Setchell perished at sea en route from San Francisco, Cal. to New Zealand.

THE YOUNG AMERICAN.—The changes resulting from the extending of the series, and the disbanding of club after club, have sufficed to render the records difficult to keep correct. This week's CLIPPER tells the whole story.

CHICKSTER.—Grace's score in Montreal was made as follows:—1 1 4 1 2 1 6 1 2 1 1 1 1 2 1 3 1 1 3 1 3 1 3 3 5 5 1 1 4 9 2 2—total, 81. Hornby's score was marked by a 5 and three threes.

G. B. B.—The Toronto club invited the eleven out, paying the expenses. To defray these they assessed every club the eleven play with $600.

BARCLAY, Guelph.—The Baltimores beat them five to one, the Athletics beat four to one, and six over; ergo, the Baltimores made the best score.

CHAS. GRAFF, Lincolnton, N. C.—1. The Athletics were champions at the close of 1871. 2. Cannot play it alone in either case.

CHESTERTONIAN.—It would be somewhat doubtful if you could become a good contortionist. They have to commence practice when they are very young.

H. H. H., Elmira, N. Y.—William Castle and Sher. Campbell were members of the Parepa-Rosa Opera Company in 1869, and have not since sung with any other troupe.

J. F. M., Quebec.—1. Charley Weshall ran one mile with four starts (at each quarter), level ground, in four minutes. 2. Will be pleased to hear from you.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—We are not aware of his having made that remark to any one, but Heenan undoubtedly was the best man that ever faced Tom.

JAS. MCGLINN, Washington.—Each party received back the amount they had deposited in the stakes, viz.:—£500, Coburn having received an additional £50 for expenses.

H. M., Joliet, Ill.—1. "The Last Rose of Summer" is an Irish song, written by an Irishman—Tom Moore. 2. There are English, Italian and German versions of the opera of "Martha."

FARMER, Rochester, N. Y.—It would not be necessary to have a magician in the drama. An actor could learn to perform the necessary tricks of legerdemain.

A. O. M., Syracuse.—The subject you refer to was published as a paid extract, credited to the paper from which it was taken. Your challenge can only appear in the same way.

GEO. F. M., San Francisco, Cal.—The pamphlet, bills and letter came safely to hand, and use will be made of them soon. Accept our thanks for your kindness.

G. H., Pittsburgh, Pa.—1. You or any one can play the burlesque. 2. Do not know where the music can be bought. 3. See list in this issue.

CARENDONIA.—We have no record of such performances by which to answer your question. See notices of Scottish games in this issue.

J. M. G., Leavenworth, Kan.—Philadelphia has a population of 674,022; Brooklyn, 396,099; St. Louis, 310,864; Chicago, 298,977, and Boston, 250,526.

X. Y. Z., Joseph.—We cannot find, after considerable search, any record of a mile race of 4 mile heats being run at Broad Rock course, Virginia.

KELPIE, St. Louis.—You are wrong, for the Jack is scored the moment it is turned, no matter if the suit has been run before and the cards run out.

REBBES, Troy.—We repeat that it was a catch bet, and B won, as there was more than one letter left, which was the true intent of the bet.

WHITTAKER.—At euchre, any player can demand to shuffle the cards before the deal, but only the player sitting on the dealer's right hand can cut them.

READER, Buffalo.—The best five mile trotting time, in harness, is 13:11, by Morrow, Detroit, Aug. 28th, 1868, to wagon, 13:43¾, by Little Mack, Fashion Course, L. I., Oct. 29th, 1863.

W. Y., Cincinnati.—Dexter was bred and raised up to his fourth year by Mr. Jonathan Hawkins, of Montgomery, Orange Co., N. Y.

MIS NESS, Paris, Ill.—1. They did not. 2. Yes, Mace and Coburn fought near Bay St. Louis, Miss., in November of last year. 3. The subscription price of the CLIPPER, per annum, is $4.

J. D.—1. There is no official time taken in England as in America; 1:48¾ is the fastest mile time here. 2. Yes, on the 17th round.

RED ROSE, Chicago.—1. O'Baldwin and Wormald never fought in England. They were matched, but Ned was scratched out of the stakes. 2. Sayers and Mace never fought.

AUSTRALIA JOE.—1. Geo. Seward ran 100 yards in 9¼ seconds, the fastest time on record. 2. Lang and Richards ran one mile, level ground, dead heat, in 4:37½.

IN THE WOODS, Carrollton, Ill.—The time made by the steamboat R. E. Lee, in her race from New Orleans, La., to St. Louis, Mo., with the Natchez, was three days, 18 hours and 14 minutes; arrived July 4, 1870.

ATKINSON, Hannibal, Mo.—1. We have never heard of the mischief you name. 2. A letter addressed to him, in care of the CLIPPER, will reach him.

H. H. H., Syracuse.—Charles O'Conner was born in New York city. 2. The highest mile in this country is 1:32½, made by Lucy, at Saratoga, July 17th, 1872.

H. W., Buffalo.—Lucy's best recorded time, previous to her Buffalo performance recently, was 2:20½ made at Providence, R. I.

J. McD., Quincy, Ill.—A player cannot raise his own build, and A had no right to place his ace on his previous build of eight, and call it nine.

D. F. E. FAUT, Taunton.—The sixty-three year old circus bill has been received, for which please accept our obligations. It will appear at an early day.

DAUPHLEMS, Harrisburg.—It was no game, and must be played over on same grounds.

NEW YORK CLIPPER.—The Atlantics will not only not disband but next season will have a very strong nine.

A. HARDSHAVE.—The man who bet that Mace would defeat Coburn in 40 minutes, lost.

ONE OF THE LOSE'S CREW.—We have no record of such time by which we can answer your question.

PATRICK BRUIN, Silver City.—Bill Poole was shot on the 28th of Feb., 1855.

E. F. BRECKER, Washington.—He did not. Odds are not given in championship matches.

FRANK WILLIS.—Heenan and Sayers fought on the 17th of April, 1860.

PHILO N. EMERSON.—If a minor, enlisting without the consent of his parents, yes; if not, no.

E. S. W., Ottawa City.—O'Baldwin's height, without his shoes, is 6 feet 1¾ inches, and he weighs, in condition, about 196 lbs.

S. LOVE, Allegheny City.—You can procure running shoes from Ed. James, who advertises. The price is $6 per pair.

FAIR.—We do not know the measurement of his arm, but his proper rowing weight is about 158 lbs.

CHARLIE, Hoboken, N. J.—We never answer questions concerning the domestic affairs of professional ladies.

F. J.—Biographical sketch of the late Henri Drayton appeared in No. 19, of the present volume of the CLIPPER.

A. J. G., Cincinnati.—We will look it over, and, if it is found to be admissible, will give it an airing.

J. W. KIMBLE.—Yes, send 12c., and we will forward you a copy, prepaid.

J. F., Troy.—A performed what he proposed to do, and wins the bet.

WHITE CHARLES, Boston.—It is very acceptable, and will have an early insertion.

G. A.—He married the lady professionally known as Miss Jennie Arnot.

BILLY O'NEIL, St. Louis.—Yankee Sullivan's right name is said to have been Frank Ambrose.

CONCORDIA, Baltimore.—B, in his turn, can go alone if the trump has not been disposed of already.

BILLIK.—The penalty for the embezzlement of $50 or more in this state is five years in state prison.

CHAPAQUA, Kansas.—It is an Indian word and pronounced Chap-a-qua-w.

ENQUIRER, Chicago, Ill.—The distance from 22d to 42d street, New York, is one mile.

WRECKAGE, St. Louis, Mo.—London, Eng., with a population of three million and a quarter, is the largest city in the world.

NED SEARLES.—At poker a player cannot go blind after the cards are dealt.

R. C. C., Beaver Meadow, Pa.—Capt. A. H. Bogardus, Elkhart, Logan county, Illinois.

MONTGOMERY, Boston.—The player can withdraw the piece, provided he keeps his finger on it and has not quitted it.

P. V. F., Utica.—If you can prove the man was cheating, you are right in claiming the money, but not otherwise.

OWEN.—The fastest mile ever trotted in this country was 1:43¾, by Alarm, at the last July meeting at Saratoga.

OLD LUCK, Indianapolis.—Such a record would occupy more space than we have to spare.

J. L. D., Rome, N. Y.—The bet was not legally made as posted, and if C had been elected A would have no claim on B's money.

BOB ROY, Humboldt, Tenn.—Hudson avenue and Navy street, Brooklyn, N. Y., run parallel.

GATE CITY, Keokuk, Iowa.—We are always glad to receive reliable items of news.

OLD READER, Middletown.—1. Barney Aaron won. 2. They fought twice.

G. T., Sacramento.—We consider the title of champion fouroared crew of the world in abeyance.

THOMAS FOWLER, New London.—1. He got down suspiciously several times. 2. It is expected so.

TRIX, Erie, Pa.—Goldsmith Maid's mile time of 2:16¾ is the fastest on record.

EIGHTH AVENUE.—A having failed to beat in cutting, as he wagered, and only tied him, lost his bet.

E. H.—If the blind is $100, the straddle will be $200. You must put your question in clearer terms.

W. H. B., Goldsmith Maid is 15 years old; Lucy 16; American Girl 10; Lady Thorn 16, and Dexter 11.

A. S. L., Fort Wayne, Ind.—Thank you for the offer, but we have no traveling correspondents.

B., Rutland, Vt.—Brief items will be acceptable, although we issue no credentials to correspondents in the smaller towns.

CRIPPER READER, Philadelphia, Pa.—We cannot recommend any one who would be likely to have broken a leg.

INQUIRER, Baltimore.—We made inquiry of the gentleman in question, but he declines to give the information required.

DR SOTO.—Gen. Dix has not made what can be called a democratic speech since election, with the exception of one delivered among the liberal citizens by this wanton destruction of property and threats were made to organize vigilance committees and clear out the houses of Brigham Young and other polygamists.

*. The iron bridge on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Road street intersection, Philadelphia, Pa., broke down while a freight train was passing over it on the 27th ult. AQUATICS.

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

*. An appalling disaster occurred on Long Island Sound early on the morning of Aug. 30th, by which many human beings were sacrificed. During a heavy storm of wind and rain, with thick weather, the steamer Metis, of the New York and Providence line, and bound for the latter port, collided with the sloop-rigged schooner Wading of Wading River, which afterward filled and went down. As she sank the upper portion parted from the hull and floated off, fortunately being washed shoreward with the breaking sea, and in this way all but two of this part of the wreck were saved, though many were in an almost helpless condition. The people of the town did all in their power to alleviate the sufferers, providing them with raiment (many being in an almost nude condition), comfortable lodgings, stimulants, etc. The officers and crew of the revenue cutter Moccasin, which happened to be in the vicinity at the time, also rendered valuable aid, rescuing nearly fifty persons from a watery grave. Others escaped in the lifeboats and more were picked up on the following day, while clinging to cotton bales and portions of the wreck. There were 155 passengers on board, of which number sixty-two are known to be lost, while 22 bodies have been recovered, leaving 26 to be accounted for.

*. The Pacific mail steamship Bienville, which left this port for Aspinwall on Aug. 24th, was burned to the water's edge on the 31st. The fire broke out among the cargo, and after fighting it for fifteen hours, those on board, fearing that it would communicate with the gunpowder on board, took to the boats. Two were subsequently reached Elenthera Island safely, the other, it is supposed, having been picked up by a passing vessel. Sixteen persons were drowned.

*. On Aug. 29th, the police, by order of a Mormon justice of the peace, made a decent upon two houses of ill-fame at Salt Lake City, Utah, and destroyed all the furniture, etc., therein, worth about $10,000. Much excitement was occasioned among the liberal citizens by this wanton destruction of property, and threats were made to organize vigilance committees and clear out the houses of Brigham Young and other polygamists.

*. The iron bridge on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Road street intersection, Philadelphia, Pa., broke down while a freight train was passing over it on the 27th ult. Four of the cars fell upon the Reading track, and a coal train coming up at the moment, there was much destruction of property, but no one was killed. Loss, $250,000. The cars took fire, and, with the stock, were consumed.

*. The steamer Novada, of the Philadelphia and Hartford Transportation Company's line, which left the Quaker city on Aug. 28th, laden with wool, rags, gasoline, etc., took fire in the Thames river on Sept. 1st and was destroyed. No lives were lost. The fire is attributed to spontaneous combustion, and the loss is about $70,000.

*. A band of 200 Araphoe Indians attacked a government train, under command of Steve Bryan, between Carson City and Fort Lyon, Colorado, on Aug. 24th, killing 19 men, 40 mules and wounding and carrying off as many more to captivity, with all the mules and plunder. The commander was literally skinned alive.

*. Mexican advices state that Lacalo has submitted to the Federal government and was at Tepic, but that Diaz refused to accept the amnesty and had fled to the mountains, intending, it is thought, to go to California. The Hall of Congress was burned on Aug. 23.

*. The excursion boats Tiger Lily and Catlin, while crowded with people, came into collision at Harlem bridge on the 31st ult., the former sustaining considerable injury. Many lives were endangered, but no one was injured.

*. Charles W. Seldon, of 67 Amity street, this city, was arrested on the 31st ult., while in the very act of performing an abortion upon the person of a young girl from New Jersey, named Barbara Vass.

*. Officers Simms and Levins, of the police force of this city, were arrested on the 31st ult., for having, it is alleged, unlawfully taken into custody Kate Kane, especially on the second day, for three days, for the sole purpose of exacting blackmail from him.

*. The sound steamer Narragansett, bound from New York to Providence, R. I., in charge of Capt. Tompkins, was run down on the night of Aug. 31st. Her engines being reversed at the time, the shock did little damage.

*. During a violent thunderstorm on Aug. 29th, a thunderbolt knocked a horse down which was being ridden by Henry Schriver and Gotlieb Ludwig, from the tow path into the canal at Fort Plain, N. Y. The men and horse were killed.

*. On the 26th of Aug. a train from New York to Philadelphia ran into a wagon at Pecony, Pa., killing five persons. The coroner's jury attributed the accident to criminal negligence on the part of the company.

*. A restaurant keeper at Washington, D. C., was fined $100 and compelled to forfeit his license for refusing to sell liquor to a colored man, such being the penalty under the District statute for refusal to sell in such cases.

*. Wm. J. Aiken, a police officer in this city, was detected in the act of committing a burglary on the night of Aug. 27th. Since his arrest he has confessed to the commission of seventeen robberies since last winter.

*. Miss Josie Mansfield's household goods and furniture were disposed of at auction on the 29th ult. The effects were bought up chiefly by speculators, very high prices being paid in many instances. The house was crowded on the occasion.

*. Advices from Havana, Cuba, to Aug. 28th, report that the insurgents, 800 strong, had been repulsed in an attack on the town of Remanzenguilla. A Spanish war schooner Condor was burned at sea on her way to Havana. All on board were saved.

*. Jonathan Rigas and John Most, while riding in a wagon during a severe storm, were run over and killed by a train on the Indianapolis and St. Louis railroad, near Terre Haute, Ind., on Aug. 28th.

*. Dr. Jewett, of North Haven, Me., committed suicide in his office, on Aug. 26d, by severing the femoral artery in both his thighs, and then setting fire to a can of kerosene oil which he had poured over the floor.

*. A passenger train on the Louisville Short Line Railroad was thrown from the track by a misplaced rail, near Verona, Ky., on the 29th ult., one man being killed and another badly injured. The rail is said to have been misplaced maliciously.

*. The boat race between Memphis and Memphis, Tenn., on the 25th and 26th ult., a number of persons being sunstruck.

*. McClelland and Donovan, prisoners confined in the jail at Hayes City, Kansas, on charges of murder and horse stealing respectively, were killed by a band of citizens.

*. The receipt of gems from the New Mexico diamond mines has created much excitement at Salt Lake City. The stones received by the Savage Company are pronounced genuine.

*. The steamship Perseverans went ashore at the entrance to the harbor of Oporto, Portugal, lately, and was wrecked, thirty persons perishing.

*. A boiler exploded in the mill of Brown, Bonnell & Co., Youngstown, O., on Aug. 28th, killing three persons and fatally injuring a fourth.

*. A newly invented canal boat, propelled by steam, was to have started from Fishkill on her experimental trip to Buffalo, on the 31 inst.

*. G. W. Martin, who murdered his wife, was taken out of the Ripley county, T

THE RING.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP LIGHT WEIGHT FIGHT ON THE 4th INSTANT.
Off for the Battle Ground.

The excitement concerning the coming battle royal between those knights of the knuckles, Billy Edwards and Arthur Chambers, for the light-weight championship and two thousand dollars in the paper of the republic, has now reached fever heat, consequent upon the close proximity of the day of settlement. They are to open their batteries upon each other in the quadrangular circle on the morning of Wednesday, Sept. 4th, and as the place chosen for the test of their relative abilities is removed hundreds of miles from the metropolis, those who purpose witnessing the fray are now rattling over the rails towards the Provinces, or made their election sure by being already there. The principals are both in the vicinity of the scene of conflict, having left their respective training quarters on the afternoon of the 1st inst., and started by rail for the trysting spot on the evening of the same day, accompanied by their trainers and a few friends. On Tuesday, Aug. 27th, after the stake money had been delivered to the gentleman chosen final stakeholder, a conference of the representatives of the men was held, at which it was decided that the fighting ground should be located upon Canadian soil, the point of departure to be either Erie, Pa., or Buffalo, N. Y. In consequence of information subsequently received, however, the starting place was changed to Detroit, Mich., where better facilities are afforded than at either of the other places for transportation, and between which and the Canadian shore are a number of islands, easily accessible and suitable for the specific purposes. On the morning of the 31st ult., Jim Mace, on behalf of Edwards, and George Seddons and Barney Aaron for Chambers, took their departure from this city for Detroit by the New York Central road, and were there early in the afternoon of the following day, the journey occupying about twenty-seven hours. The object is to choose the fighting ground and make arrangements for the conveyance of principals and spectators thereto, both men to go on the same boat. Though the fixing of the ground so far away is a source of disappointment to the ring-goers of this section, who had hoped that a locality more convenient to them would be chosen, still we certain in the belief that no one who attends will have occasion to regret taking the trip (unless he bets on the wrong man), but will be certain to witness one of the best fights that ever took place on this side of the Atlantic, that there will be quite a strong delegation present from this and other cities in the middle states, with a sprinkling of New Englanders. Some went from the metropolis by the evening trains on the 1st inst. along with the principals, but the majority deferred their departure until the 10 A. M. train on the New York Central and the 11 A. M. express on the Erie railway on the 2d, arriving at their destination on the afternoon of the following day, in season to get their bearings for subsequent action. Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Indianapolis, and other cities in the west and northwest, will no doubt be largely represented on the ground, for it has been a long time since a match of anything like equal importance has been decided in that region; besides which, there has long existed a strong desire among western ringites to see Edwards fight, for though they have heard so much of his abilities they have never yet been afforded an opportunity to see him put up his hands, and they wont willingly allow this chance to slip by. In next week's CLIPPER will appear a full, correct and impartial report of the engagement.

TWO SHORT FIGHTS IN ONE RING.
Kelly Defeats Timony, and Baker Wallops Hayes.

At Campobello, about half a mile from Willchpool, opposite Eastport, Me., the match made on June 22d, for $200 a side, between Tommy Kelly, of Boston, Mass., and Ted Timony, of Providence, R. I., was decided on Aug. 28th, the result being an easy victory for Kelly. The winner had appeared four times previously in the orthodox circle, having beaten Billy Parkinson, and being beaten by Parkinson (twice) and George Seddons. Timony fought Jack Conboy previously, defeating him in 23 minutes, during which time 20 rounds were contended; the stake fought for was $400, and the locale Fisher's Island, in the Sound, Feb. 1st, 1870. The men were confined in 140lbs., and the date originally named for the fight was Aug. 20th, but an alteration was made for satisfactory reasons, first until the 30th, and then a day later. Several boats left Eastport at 3 o'clock A. M. for Wichpool, where had already gathered a large party of sports from Portland, Boston, St. John, N. B.; Providence, and other places. The ring was formed at half-past five, and at seven o'clock the fight began. Kelly's seconds were Jim McKay and Johnny Walker. Timony was squired by Patsy Shephard and Jimmy Gallagher. The fight lasted about half an hour, during which time ten rounds were fought. In the first and second rounds Kelly went down, Timony obtaining first blood. In the third round Kelly claimed and was allowed first knock down. In the fourth round Timony again drew the blood from Kelly. The tenth round and fight was finished by Kelly hitting Timony a straight counter blow on the eye and a cross counter on the jaw, both knocking him to the ground senseless. When "time" was called for the eleventh round Timony was still insensible and Kelly was declared the victor. Kelly then went among the crowd and collected a handsome sum for Timony.

Immediately after this fight there was another for a purse between Marcellus Baker, of Bangor, and James Hayes, of Portland, Me. Only one round was fought, lasting fifteen minutes; Baker badly punishing his opponent. There was no disturbance, and everything was carried out in an orderly manner. The principals and their followers left same day in the steamer for Boston.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—A fatal affray occurred at the saloon kept by C. Harvey, at 288 Hudson street, this city, and known as "The Place," on the evening of Sunday, Sept 1st, Robert S. Dunn, alias Bob Isaacs, being shot dead by Wm. J. Bricker. Both are well known politicians and sporting men of the Eighth ward, and up to this time had always been on the most friendly terms. They met in the saloon named upon their return from the funeral of a mutual friend and fellow-member of the Michael Norton Association, James Reilly, and after taking a drink together, a conversation took place in reference to the payment of a considerable sum of money said to have been loaned by Sharkey to deceased. The latter did not have the amount, and offered some excuse which incensed the other, and after a brief but exciting altercation, he suddenly drew a revolver and shot Dunn, who fell to the floor stone dead. Upon medical attendance being summoned, it was found that the ball had entered the body just below the breastbone, on the median line and taken an upward course. After committing the deed Sharkey coolly replaced the murderous weapon in his pocket and walked out of the house, those present making no attempt to detain him. The intelligence of the shooting created considerable excitement in political and sporting circles in the Fifth Congressional District, and while the body of the murdered man lay at Twenty-eighth precinct station-house many of his friends called to view it, and deep regret was expressed at this sudden cutting off in the very prime of life of an inoffensive man who had a large circle of warm friends.

MACE AND O'BALDWIN.—An arrangement has been made in regard to this undecided match which promises to ere long bring the affair to a consummation within the ropes. Representatives of each party met the final stakeholder, by appointment, on Saturday, the evening of Aug. 30th, and after listening patiently to the statements and views of each, said official notified them to be ready to fight on a certain date, appointing a time and place to meet him, and giving them to understand that in case either principal was accompanied by more than a designated number of men (that number being very limited) he would award the money to the other party. This is all the information we have in regard to the matter. The place at which the men are to fight will not be known by either until they arrive in its immediate vicinity, and the day set for the meeting, while not far distant, is yet sufficiently removed to enable the men to recover from the effects of the let up in training consequent upon the West Virginia fizzle. The stakeholder has, we believe, been wooted with power to either act as referee himself or appoint some one else to officiate in that capacity, so that there will not be any trouble experienced in that quarter. O'Baldwin is at his old quarters in West Philadelphia, while Mace is at present in Detroit, Mich., as representative of Edwards in the latter's match with Chambers, which is to be decided near that city on the 4th inst., and upon his return to the metropolis he will at once resume active training somewhere in New Jersey.

O'CONNOR VS. CARR.—A fresh match has been made between those western experts, Mike O'Connor and Dan Carr, who have twice already tried each other's mettle. Articles of agreement were entered into on the 24th ult., by the conditions of which they bind themselves to fight a fair, stand-up fight, for the sum of $250 a side, within a hundred miles of Chippewa Falls, Wis., at catch-weight, on Friday, Nov. 1st. A deposit of twenty-five dollars a side was forwarded with the articles, and two more deposits of $100 and $125, respectively, are to be made on Sept. 6th and Oct. 21st.

PATSY LAWSON had a fair-sized turn-out at his benefit, at the Arbor, on the evening of the 31st ult. Those who took part in the exercises were Geo. Thomas and the beneficiary, Slater and Kennedy, Raman and Cox, Chambers' Novice, Lawson and Siler, the latter being the wind-up and a good exhibition of skill. With the exception of the last bout, and that between Thomas and Lawson, the boxing was poor.

TIM COLLINS, who came to the metropolis from Boston, Mass., a couple of weeks since, is down for a benefit at Seddons & Chambers' Arbor, West Houston street, on the evening of Saturday, Sept. 7th. A number of well known boxers are billed to appear, and Tim will have a bout with George Seddons as a wind-up to the exercises.

TOM GAITTLEY gave a sparring exhibition at Geoghegan's hall, Twenty-second street and First avenue, on the 31st ult., which was fairly attended by east siders.

WE HAVE LETTERS for James Mace, Billy Edwards and Arthur Chambers (2).

THE AMATEUR SKATING CHAMPIONSHIP of the Pacific coast was announced for settlement at Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, Cal., on Aug. 31st, in a trial of skill of twenty-four movements, for a jewel set in gold, valued at $280, the design of which is a spread eagle, holding an arrow in its talons, to which a skate is suspended, to be held by the winner two years against any amateur challenger. Callie Curtis was to be the manager of the affair.

A SHOOTING MATCH between Messrs. Birnbaum and Charles Eckart, twenty-five single birds each, took place at Exposition Park, Cincinnati, on the 29th ult., and was won by Birnbaum, by a score of 23 to 22. Mr. Eckert shot with but one hand.

Musical.

SIGNOR CANTONELLO, a baritone of repute in Italy, has been engaged by Mr. Mapleson for 1873.

MADAME STOLZ, of the Scala, in Milan, has been engaged by Mr. Dye for the Royal Italian Opera, where, according to rumor, Sig. Pio Martucci, of Bologna, will be the sole conductor for the season of 1873.

HE directed the performances of Herr Wagner's "Lohengrin" at Bologna and Florence.

THE "Hamlet" of M. Ambroise Thomas is to be produced in St. Petersburgh with Signor Cotogni as the Danish Prince; Signor Gardoni, Laertes; Signor Ragagnio, the King; Signor Capponi, the Ghost; and Madame Nilsson-Rouzaud, Ophelia.

SIGNOR MASI, it is reported, is about to make a professional second tour of the United States.

ENGLISH OPERA AT SOUTH AFRICAN DIAMOND FIELDS.—Advices from Dortfontein, dated June 8th, state that on May 31st, "The Duenna" was performed in Mr. Jamieson Hall by the amateur Lyster company, assisted by Mr. Hewitt and several amateurs, in a highly creditable manner. Madame Lyster, as Aritne, both sang and acted as only an artist of the first order could do. Mr. Hewitt, though evidently not accustomed to performing in opera, sang the music of Thaddeus in a manner which left little to be desired. Mr. Harper's rendering of the Count was highly satisfactory, and Mr. J. H. Lyster, in the part of Don Ithoof, maintained his reputation as an actor. The other characters were well sustained, and the argument of the opera, being printed at the top of the programme, enabled the audience to become acquainted with the chief incidents of the story. The scenery was good, the dresses were pretty and characteristic, and the hall is better adapted for musical and dramatic performances than any other building on the field.

SIGNOR ROTA, the famous tenor, has passed through Paris on his way to Russia, where he is engaged for the winter.

MLLE. TRUSSINA has just arrived in Paris from Russia, where she has been fulfilling a very lucrative and successful engagement.

LEWIS RENDE, tenor, sailed on Aug. 19th, from Liverpool, Eng., by the Oceanic, for New York.

MR. GEORGE PERREN, the eminent and respected vocalist, died at London, Eng., July 25th, in the 61st year of his age.

Variety Hall.

AT THE London, Eng., Music Halls no changes of importance have occurred. August is considered the dullest month of the season, and consequently few changes in the companies take place, and the same may be said of the provincial halls.

ELIZABETH, wife of Prof. J. G. Gregory, and mother of the well-known Gregory family, now making a tour around the world, died on June 8th last at Buitenzorg, near Batavia, Java, at the age of 42 years.

THE GREAT Magiciaan contemplates visiting America professionally.

ARTHUR LLOYD and his company started on a provincial tour on August 19th.

GEORGE LESTOCQUES was "doing" Paris, France.

Circuses.

AN AMERICAN (?) TRAVELING CIRCUS was established at Amiens, France, a few weeks back, and made a procession through the town, when the musicians, costumed as Prussian soldiers, played the "Marseillaise." The utter bad taste of this proceeding raised the just indignation of an excited crowd, and the company was forced to make a precipitate retreat from the town..... In Ireland, Hengler's Circus had commenced a season at Bristol. The "bare-back" riding of James Lloyd is highly commended..... Sanger's Circus was temporarily located at Portsmouth..... Newsome's Circus was giving a brief season at Preston..... Mander's Menagerie exhibited at Reading, Aug. 6th and 7th..... Bennett's Circus performed at Redditch, Aug. 7th..... Powell and Clarke's Paragon Circus performed at Seaham Harbor, Aug. 30..... Charles Adams' Circus was located at Southport..... Frederick Allen had opened his circus at Whitby, where he purposes remaining for this season.

MILITARY CIRCUS PERFORMERS.—The Ninth (Queen's Own) Lancers have erected a large marquee in the rear of the Royal Marine Barracks, at Woolwich, Eng., and the other night gave a "grand circus" performance for the amusement of the garrison. They have a stud of well trained "trick" horses and ponies, and some of the non-commissioned officers and men displayed extraordinary skill in feats of horsemanship and gymnastic exercises. The Hon. E. Willoughby officiated as clown.

Miscellaneous.

THEODORE THEATRICAL IN LONDON, ESQ.—Again Mons. La Theorne sends us a report of what he had seen, heard and experienced in the big city up to Aug. 7th, of which we give our readers the benefit:—"The principal theatres here are now closed and brushing up for the fall season. Dion Boucicault opens Covent Garden, the latter part of August, with an eastern spectacular piece, similar to 'Lalla Rookh,' called 'Babil and Bejoo.' It is in five acts and a prologue, and embraces the ballet, drama, spectacle and burlesque, to be gotten up in magnificent style. At Drury Lane they intend producing a new version of 'The Lady of the Lake.' At the Alhambra they are still running 'Le Roi Carrotta.' I visited the Gaities Theatre last evening to see Mr. Bouciault in his play of 'Richard Murray,' in which the author personates the character of an old Irish valet, a splendid piece of character acting, and I predict that the play will make a big hit in New York, where, I understand, Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault are going this fall. At Moore and Burgess' Christy Minstrels, St. James Hall, the feature of the week has been the appearance of Mr. Charles Backus, of the San Francisco Minstrels, who has appeared for the week past to crowded houses, and produced a great sensation. On the last night of his appearance Mr. Moore presented Mr. Backus with a beautiful piece of silver plate, and the remainder of the evening was spent in a jolly round of fun and hilarity. This morning the old war horse, Uncle Eph Horn, made his appearance, and the boys immediately took him in hand and gave him a warm reception. Signor F. B. Picard, the circus manager, who was with Chiarini in the United States a few years ago, sails from here on August 17th in the steamer Moselle, for Lima, Peru, with a large and very fine circus troupe. Young Hawley, the gymnast, met with an accident at the Oxford Music Hall a few evenings since, while performing his new feat on the flying trapeze. Mr. Hawley has been very unfortunate during his sojourn here, as it was but a short time ago he had a severe fall at the Crystal Palace, and now this one lids fair to lay him up for a while, as the vaulting table in the Strand, where he was still running the burlesque of 'The Very Last Days of Pompeii,' which has reached its 150th representation, in which the charming burlesque actress, Miss Nelly Power, rightly adds to her laurels. At the Queen's Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann are playing in the drama of 'Dead or Alive,' to fine houses. At the National Standard Theatre, Mr. Henry Irving is playing 'The Bells,' an account of which I sent you from Liverpool. The following theatres are also running a summer season:—Princess's, Strand and New Pavilion. At the Crystal Palace they are giving afternoon operas. The North Woolwich Gardens are running a monkey show, baboons, performing canines, marmosets, and pantanzees, etc., without number. After this comes the bar-maid show, and then the baby show. Mr. Holland is a live manager, and keeps excitement up all the time. At the Royal Surrey Zoological Gardens and the Cremorne Gardens at Chelsea fine entertainments are given at a very reasonable price of admission. The London music halls are well patronized and give an excellent entertainment, but some of the performers having to appear at four or five different halls of a night, they only sing two and at the most three songs at one place. Mr. Arthur Lloyd, the great English comic vocalist, had a benefit at the Pavilion Music Hall, and, notwithstanding the price of admission was raised to twice the usual rates, the hall was full to overflowing, all the prominent artists of the music hall fraternity volunteering their services, viz.:—Geo. Loybourne, Clarence Holt, Victor Liston, Henri Clark, Leggett and Alden, Will Parker, Macnagan, Raynor Brothers, Jolly Nash, Fred. Foster, the Linton Family, J. W. Rowley, Court Minstrels, Alf Walker, Frank Mordaunt, Dunbar Pershvanni and Vandonalde, Rogers and Leslie, Miss Kelly Dyall, Grace Harrington, Montague Sisters, Mrs. Phillips, Miss Louie Sherrington, M'lle Delorenzo, Helena Stuart, M'lle Howard and Miss Patti Goddard. The entertainment commenced at 7 o'clock and lasted until midnight. Mr. Lloyd takes a travelling party out through the provinces, starting next week."

THE SISTERS ANDERSON.—Lizzie, Louise and Sophie—performed during the week ending Aug. 10th, at Chatham, Eng.

THE WONDERFUL
ARABIAN ATHLETES, THE
BEN ABDALLAH TROUPE
GENUINE BEDOUIN ARABS,
which have been performing with Reston, Springer & Henderson's Great Mastodon Menagerie and Circus, have everywhere proved the arenic sensation and success of the season. The performance so generally extended them proves that novelty and genuine merit will draw, under almost any circumstances, and certainly they deserve the compliment and commendation, for not only are they artists, pre-eminent in the feats of the gymnasium, but gentlemen of the most correct deportment in every respect. No comparison between their extraordinary feats of agility, strength and skill and those of the performers to the manor born can be appreciated only made, as they differ, in toto, both in conception and execution. Wonderful, wonderful! is but the suitable expression, and these agile Sons of the Desert have earned for themselves the distinction of being established as the greatest show card in Christendom. 23-2t*

AIN'T IT SO?

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

It's a very nice thing to wear fine togs,
(Some folks they call toggery—clothes),
To sport lavender kids, and a diamond pin,
And to dine at Mr. Delmonico's;
To drive fast nags, to have good friends,
(How thick they are, and how fast they stick!)
But first, in order to do all this,
You must have some balsam in your kick!

It's a very nice thing to fall in love—
With a handsome little chit of a girl,
With a form like Hebe's, cheek like a peach,
A delicate hand and a neck of pearl,
And marry her; love won't boil the pot;
You will ascertain this, pretty quick;
You will find that the darling thing must eat;
You must have some balsam in your kick!

This world is a charming place to stay—
You can live on the very fat of the land,
Sleep on rose leaves, and dine like a prince,
Every pleasure just at your hand;
My Lord Mogul will raise his hat,
Obsequious lackeys your hands will lick,
And dark-eyed houris will smile on you,
If you have some balsam in your kick!

If you don't—ah! my covey, there's the rub!
Poor devil, you might as well be dead!
Your dark-eyed houri will sniff up her nose,
And my Lord Mogul will turn his head;
When you are well, ah! this life is hard enough!
But what if you're hungry, and poor, and sick?
Far better be down underneath the sod
If you have no balsam in your kick! J. H. B.

THE TOMBS OF ACTORS.

Touching Tales from the Shades of Cypress Hills.

To the thousands who feel interested in the history of the drama there is probably no place in this country more truly suggestive than Cypress Hills Cemetery, holding, as it does, the dust of more than sixty men and women, who, in various forms and at different times, were prominent on the American stage. At other places the graves of a few of the muse's servants may be seen, but here there is a multitude.

The greatest personators of the past may not be here, but there are many who in their time were deemed great, and who even to-day, were they on the boards, would command the admiration and applause of the educated and judicious. The ground in which they repose is the property of the New York Dramatic Fund Association, and was purchased in March, 1854, in the latter part of which the first interment was made.

The cemetery, considered as a whole, is of rare beauty, and the actor's enclosure is one of the most beautiful spots in the whole. It stands upon a considerable eminence, at the foot of which, still as death, and surrounded by drooping willows, slumbers Cypress Lake. A view of the ocean, with its suggestion of eternity, is presented in the east; westward, far as the eye can reach, stretch undulating forests of oak and pine, while north and south, through shrubbery and flowers, shoot up the spires, and appear the modest stones placed above the departed by still reminiful friends. From the main gate to this spot the path of the visitor winds by many of the most historic points in the grounds.

The grounds of the Dramatic Fund Association are kept in excellent order. The graves are laid out with taste. The entire lot covers over 900 square feet, and is quadrangular in form. At each of the corners a willow grows, while in the middle background an oak, around the trunk of which cling ivy leaves, waves its branches. In the centre a tasteful urn covered with honeysuckle stands, with lilies and roses at its feet. Along the borders shrubbery grows and gives to the whole an effect of care and completeness. In the middle part of the grounds lie buried the children of actors, while the sides are devoted to the ashes of the parents. Many of the men and women who slumber here were but little known to the community, but the names of C. W. Lyons, Andrew Jackson Allen, Isaac Sanderson, S. Thompson, George Skerrett, Catherine Wynant, Emma Dickson, Charles D. S. Howard, Alfred Moore, Charles L. Stone, Mary Barrett, Frederick M. Kent, George H. Barrett, Charles T. Parsloe, George Holland, Daniel B. Van Deren, Samuel D. Eytinge, Amelia Furzie, Mrs. Elizabeth Conney, Mrs. Thomas Price, John Jones, Thomas Price, William H. Bellamy, John Bridgeman, William Dearing, John H. Oxley, James W. Lingard, William H. Reynolds, Adam Brooks, (E. B. Williams,) George Jamison, John Sefton, Mary Marcy, Edmund Simpson and Henri B. Drayton had become familiar to the theatre-goers of the country.

The first grave that attracts attention on entering the ground is that of Andrew Jackson Allen. It is to the left of the gate. There is a modest stone at the head, on which the time of his birth and death are recorded in plain black letters. Under the inscription are the words "From his cradle he was a scholar—exceedingly wise, fair spoken and persuading. Lofty and sour to them that loved him not, but to those men that sought him—sweet as summer." He was born in New York in December, 1776, and made his debut as an actor as one of the incense boys in "Romeo and Juliet," at the old John Street Theatre, 1787. The stage was from first to last a passion with him; while still a lad he looked from the gallery with more than admiration upon the men and with his maturer years he sought as his companions only the men whom he came in contact with before the footlights. As an actor he never rose above mediocrity, but his eye for costume and general effect was unsurpassed. Before he had gained any very wide reputation, his hearing failed him, which infirmity, besides attaching the name of "Dummy Allen," made him the more readily abandon character impersonization, and accept the offer of costumer of Mr. Edwin Forrest. Here he excelled, and to his skill not a little of the great tragedian's success may well be attributed. He died Oct. 30th, 1858. As a man he was the embodiment of culture and eccentricity. His disposition was good, but his temper, like his hearing, was slightly infirm, and his stock of quotations—which was without limit—was made to do duty as often as the vehicle of his own overburdened feelings, as for the enlightenment of his associates. Still he was generous and manly, and few who knew him can pass his quiet grave without feeling a pang of regret.

Along side of Allen lies Lysander Thompson, one of the best character actors and most genial gentlemen that ever graced the American stage. Nature lived in his every impersonation, and the critic would find it hard to find not and there was nothing in human nature which Thompson could not find expression for on the green isle. Germans knew him to be of their race, and the Yankee found the very reflex of New England in his form. He was, however, a native of Yorkshire, England, and especially excelled in the delineation of English peculiarities. He was born in 1823, and made his debut on the stage in 1842. After a successful career in his native country, he came to America, in August, 1852, and in the character of Bob Tyke, in "School for Reform," first appeared before an American audience in Burton's Chambers Street Theatre, New York. He died in Brooklyn in 1854. The profession lost one of its lights when he departed.

Near to Thompson reposes George Skerrett, the once celebrated low comedian. On his tombstone are the words:—

"Alas, poor Skerett!
He was a fellow of infinite jest
And most excellent spirit."

This quotation tells in brief the story of his life. He was the soul of all good company, and what he achieved or failed to achieve may be accounted for by his peculiar characteristic. He was born in Liverpool, England, in 1810, and died in the city of Albany May 16th, 1855. In the old Park Theatre, New York, that "Drury Lane" of the continent, he was introduced to the Americans and made a decided impression. In the characters of Timid in the "Dead Shot," and Dominique the Deserter, he was far above the average actor. The good things that are told of him would fill a volume, and it is to the honor of his professional brethren that they show no disposition to inter the good that he did with his bones. Skerrett, both as a man and an actor, deserves to be remembered.

A little further to the right, under the shadow of one of the willows already mentioned, without a stone to mark his resting place, sleeps the famous comedian, George H. Barrett, known in his day as "Gentleman George," and esteemed not more as an actor than he was as a man. On the stage he was as fully the ideal actor as those who had the fortune of knowing him say he was a man. As a companion, he was all that could be wished—courteous in his manner, engaging in conversation, upright in his thought, and with a heart that never looked upon suffering without a desire to assuage it. Indeed, if he had a fault—and, being human, it is supposed that he had—it was in the fact that the generous impulses of his nature to control his judgment. He was born in Exeter, England, June 9th, 1794. In 1806, still a child, he appeared at the Park Theatre, New York, in the part of Young Norval, and from that time forth till his life ended, Sept. 8th, 1850, he continued to be interested in American theatricals. For several years he was stage manager of the Old Bowery Theatre with Gilfert, and while there made himself a universal favorite by his gentlemanly comedy acting. He took his farewell benefit Nov. 20th, 1855, and received as the result over $2,000. Some of the finest dramatic talent New York ever saw appeared on that occasion, and George himself received a perfect ovation. Strange to say, however, this actor and gentleman died in abject poverty. His history is instructive in many respects. Plodding mediocrity accumulated wealth all about him, while he, talented and admired, passed on to an unmarked grave. Why?

His wife, Mary Barrett, lies buried by his side. She was an actress of merit in her day.

In the same row with Allen, Thompson and Barrett is the grave of Charles T. Parsloe, who is reputed to have been the father of theatrical agencies in this country. In common with many of the actors who held sway in the New York stage early in this century, he was born in London, and never forgot that old England was the parent of dramatic art. There was nothing very imposing or promising in the nature of his first appearance upon the stage. He became known to fame as one of the genii named "Glow-worm Glimmer," in the pantomime of "Harlequin Swans." At the Park Theatre, in 1818, he first appeared in America, Oct. 2d, 1829, as the nondescript, in "Peter Wilkins." His success was moderate. His style, despite both culture and grace, was too English ever to become greatly popular in this country. He had however, considerable business tact, which, through time, enabled him to make money, if not fame. The agency which he established in New York has now a prototype in almost every state in the Union. He was widely known, and did business with most of the traveling actors of his day. He died Sept. 22d, 1870, and, with little ceremony, was placed under the ground without a stone to tell his name to the passer-by. His character was, in some respects, as curious a medley as any of the parts he ever assumed on the stage. Clear-headed when devoted to business, actions are recorded of him as irrational as anything done by an inmate of Bedlam; shrewd as a broker, he allowed, by loose holding, a fortune to slip through his fingers; he meant well and aimed high, but irresolution was his besetting sin, and circumstances that would have been harmless to a stronger will, thwarted not a few of his most sincere and deserving efforts for professional advancement. He may not have been a great actor, but the wayward spirit of the player was certainly one with him.

Immediately to the right of Parsloe lies the once favorite light comedian, Frederick M. Kent, a jolly fellow in his day, and possessed of undoubted dramatic talent. He died in 1853, at the age of thirty six. As Squeers in "Nicholas Nickleby," he is said to have been remarkably amusing. The chuckle-headed, coarse, hypocritical country keeper of Dotheboy's Hall appeared to have come back from the grave when Kent assumed the part.

From this point come in succession the graves of Catharine Wynant, Emma Dickson, Alfred Moore, Charles L. Stone, and Geo ge Holland. The name of Holland has been rendered celebrated by the terrible excitement caused by the New York pastor's refusal to bury an actor, and the subsequent action of the minister who preached in "the little church around the corner." The facts of Holland's life have been so recently published that no necessity exists for their recapitulation here. Suffice it to say that from September, 1838, until the time of his death, no season passed in which he did not appear on the stage. There was a grace and spirit about his acting that always commended him to the public; to the boys in the gallery he shone like a star in the firmament, while to the educated he never appeared other than the good-hearted, cultivated gentleman that he was. His style of acting—if the fact is worth recording—was that of the elder Matthews and Jack Reeves. He had ups and downs enough in life to form a romance; now rolling in wealth, and anon in abject poverty. The wealth was fairly won by his talent, and the poverty as naturally caused by his generous indiscretion. He never could philosophize before spending a dollar, and consequently had many a time to bow to men in every way his inferior. His weaknesses were such as spring from an over generous heart, and his merits were the merits of every man of principle, heart, and genial temperament. Being an actor, however, the church in its purity—the church which he had for years attended—could not bury him. Like the estimable Pharisee, the minister feared contamination, and therefore commended him for attention to the Samaritan round the corner. The actors of the country, in the case of Holland, did all in their power to raise money for his family—and they did raise thousands of dollars throughout the country—yet, strange to say, there is no tombstone over his grave. George Holland, a man of national reputation, lies without a symbol of sorrow about him. He was for more than one season a comet, but now he has certainly the humblest of all sepulchres. What is glory? What is fame? The echo of a long lost name.

Not far from Holland a splendid marble shaft is raised covered with laudation to the memory of Lingard, the Bowery manager who committed suicide. He was a mason, and a member of the order of Elks, and between them they raised this memorial. On one side of the pedestal is graven the quotation:—"After life's fitful fever he sleeps well."

In the vicinity of Lingard under a willow rest the ashes of a young lady who attracted much attention three years ago as a member of the "Black Crook" ballet company. Suggestively enough, her headstone is representative of a vine clinging to a broken column.

There are other graves like this around, sadder far in their solitude than all the noise of fashionable grief. Henri B. Drayton, George Jamison, John Sefton, and Edmund Simpson are all buried outside, but near to the Association burying grounds. Drayton's grave is new made, without even grass upon it. He was a mason, and the lot on which he lies is of the form adhered to by the craft. Drayton's career as an opera singer and an actor is familiar to the public, but only those who knew him as a friend can understand what a blank must have been left in the domestic circle by his death.

Sefton and Jamison lie quietly sleeping together, with chaste marble tombstones over each of their graves, recording the time of their birth and death. They were firm friends in life, and there is something fitting in that they rest together.

A little to the left of Jamison is the grave of Edmund Simpson, spoken of by all who knew him as one of nature's noblemen. On his grave is laid a large marble slab bearing his name, with the inscription "Integer vitæ scelerisque purus." There does not appear to be anything harmful in this simple expression by partial friends, that the deceased lived a pure and manly life. Nobody but the sheerest bigot would ever object to this. Yet the model Christians of Trinity Church, New York, objected to it. Simpson had been buried in their grounds, and when the stone in question came to be placed over him, the authorities of the church gave notice that no man could lie in their grounds with such an inscription on his tombstone. The quotation, they said, was from a profane author, and they did not propose to have their orthodox precincts invaded by profane literature. With the spirit of men the friends of Simpson disinterred the body, shook the dust of Trinity from their feet, and buried him here near to many who had known and admired him in life, and who, had they lived, would certainly have made no objection to stating in the words of a classic writer the tradition on a grave stone. The incident is especially commended to the notice of those who think that bigotry is dead, or that what lives of it must be sought among the convents of Rome. The Episcopal Church within two years refused to bury one actor and enforced the disinterment of a second because his friends believed and said his life was pure. Simpson was born in England in 1784. He early manifested a love for the stage. Even when but a school boy, he was wont to carry old play books in his pockets, from which, at suitable opportunities, he declaimed to his admiring associates. When in 1806 he made his debut at Lancaster as Baron Steinfort in the play of the "Stranger," he looked upon himself as the happiest of mortals, and felt as if all earthly ambition had been realized in his person. The character was not by any means a great one, but he played it well and the theatre, his associates record, was with applause.

Even to the old professional the indications of approval are gratifying, but to a youth of Simpson's temperament, upon his first appearance, to have the audience cheer, was the occasion of delirious joy that cannot be described. In 1807 he arrived in New York, and made his first appearance at the Park as Harry Dornton, in "The Road to Ruin." He became a favorite at once with the American public, and gained for himself the reputation of being one of the most careful and pleasing actors on the stage. During the latter years of his life he was manager of the Park Theatre, in conjunction with Mr. Price, and under their auspices most of the English stars were brought to this country. While playing "Faustus," in 1828, the trap on the stage gave way, letting him down with such force that he broke his leg. Mr. and Mrs. Barry were injured severely by the same accident. His last appearance on the stage was in 1841, when, to an immense house, he played Dazzle in "London Assurance." He died July 31st, 1848, and shortly after that the theatre which he had so long graced was burned to the ground. Green be the turf above him.

These gentlemen who have been enumerated are but a few of the most prominent actors who lie buried in and around the grounds of the Association.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"UNCLE SCHNEIDER'S" EXPERIENCES.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY MARK QUENCHER.

"Uncle Schneiders" Lager Zaloon Py der Bowery.

Not long sincely I satisfied der ambitions of my proken-Dutch heart, und obened a Vine und Lager Zaloon, py der Bowery dherein. I always vos a fine vriend of der drama, und dhere vas no dhing vas so fine as dot I should be der boss of a Lager "Restauration;" dhem fellers mit dhere shirt sleeves und big shdomacks, und healthy nose's, did always look so gomfortable like; und besides, dhere vas such a chanceen to got treated, to say a nodding of der confenience of getdin py der Lager keg always somedimes vonce or twice in a vile. Dis being der cases, I obened oud my zaloon. Dot vas a gomfortable leedle place, too. Behindt my bar dhere vas a big sign, in big safage letters:—

"If you got no money, don't you trink my beer;
Choost Pecause, you fun! dhere vas no trust here!"

Der rest of der furniture consists of a couple chairs und tables, von keg lager, von big bull-dogs, und some butiful pictures, vich shows der pleasures of trinkin beer. Every ding of der first-vater—der vine, der pretzels, oxbecially vas der viskey of der first vater, und blaindy of it neider. I got me a nice leedle back rooms where "der poys" hung oud after 12 o'glock B. M., und vhere der serfices vas holded on Sundays.

I always try to make eferyding nice und shociable for my gusdomers, but somedimes I got trubbles mit dot, because der most of dem fellers like to trink first rate, but der most of dhem fellers don't like to pay quite so first rate; vich, you vill opserf, vos a horse mit some oder colors. But I vouldn't mind it if dhem fellers vas only resbonsible. Now, for instuct:—a feller comes py my zaloon dherein, und says:—"Look here vonce, Schneider! Vasn't I always good gusdomer py you?" und I say "sure." "Und didn'd I always shbend bliandy bennies ofer dis bar, somedimes efen buying two lagers, von right behindt der oder?" And I say, "Dots so!" "Vell, Schneider, you know I vas always choost so reckless mit my two-cent bieces like dot, and I always put a roofs on your shingles by nefer refusing to treat!" "Dot's so, eiery time," I reply.

"Vell now, Schneider, I vas different. I got me no money on account I discharged my boss last week, und I vas dead proke mit my bocket book oudside-in, und my vife she vas sick mit der ghoiera-infantum und my baby vas about to be a angel, und I hafe to hire out a lady to do der vash-tub bizzness, und my landlordt he says 'dis is der last time,' und so fourd und so on. As der song says:—

"No von schquints oud at me now,
On account I'm brokened-down-ub"— or someding to dhem effect. So, Schneider, I like first-rate to shtruggle mit a leetle trink—a lager, or a viskey, mit a shilling, or even a quarder, und I vould vant it on de cheap prices. We are indebted to Mr. W. H. Neff, of Philadelphia, for this contribution to the CLIPPER Varieties:—

BONES AT A FREE-AND-EASY.

INTERLOCUTOR.—What was that you were saying, Mr. Bones, about a banquet?

BONES.—O, yes. I had an invite to a dinner party, and I promised to tell you all about it.

INT.—What sort of a dinner party was it, sir?

BONES.—It was one ob dem sort whar de gwests am allowed to pay for eberyting dey order; a Free-and-Easy, I tink dey calls it. It was all mighty "easy," as to dat, but I couldn't see anyting "free" about it. Well, dey discorted me to de char at de head ob de table an gub me two chairs when I took it.

INT.—Three chairs, sir! Am I to understand that you were lying down during the entertainment?

BONES.—No, no—I said tree chairs.

INT.—Oh! three cheers. Well.

BONES.—Well, den dey'ax me for a speech, but I begged off, and says I, I's so unaccustomed to public speakin dat I dint got none will me, but I'll gub you a conundum. "Why am a theneer like a indiwidual ob hasty temper?" All passed. "Well," says I, "a ingineer is like a man ob hasty temper 'cause he allways fires up when he receibes a order." Dat sot dem all agoin; and anudder feller spoke up, and says he—"Why am a person wid his trout line in the wair'y, waitin' for a bite, like a stock broker? Gob dat's you, sar—'cause he waits for a rise."

TAMBO.—Lemme git in my oar. Why was a certain weasel ob oil dat's mentioned in de Scriptures like de voyage ob Lady Franklin in search ob her husband? Pan dat? Why, bekase it was de Widder's (wessel).

BONES.—Well, to return to de free and easy, de feller at de oder end ob de table, he calls out, says he: "Hold on; I got one, too." "Dat so, sar," said I. "Pass on." "Why am a yoor apple cart." Den says he:—"Why am de captain ob a sailin' vessel like a pickpocket?" All grub it up. "Well," says he, "it's because whenever he goes out he takes a purser." De next one was my turn, so, says I:—"Why am an opera like a barrel?" "Because it's composed of a great many staves."

INT.—I suppose that is a reason why a man who resorts too often to the bars is said to be staving drunk.

BONES.—"Well," says anudder todder feller:—"Why is Mr. O'Donnovan Rossa, the Irish patriot, like a werry bad boy?" Ebery one was silent and all you could hear was de fingers ob de darkeys scratchin' deir wool for an idea. "De reason why Mister Rossa am like a werry bad boy is dat he am an Erin's son."

INT.—Why is Stokes, at present confined in the Tombs, a very puzzling character to the sheriff? It's because that individual can't get de hang of him.

BONES.—Well, we took a drink betwix' each conundum, and dere was songs and one ting anudder scattered along, and den I went asleep, and when I woked up de sun was shinin' and de rest ob de free and easy fellers was away under de table.

INT.—A rather loose party, in my opinion; but let us have something from our newly imported tenor.

Our Little Household Pet.

In and out the liveleone day,
Up and down the creaking stairs,
Ever brisk and ever gay,
Full of wild and winning airs;
Singing old familiar songs,
One, once hearing, can't forget,
Sweet as any nightingale
Is our darling household pet.
Chorus.—She's the idol of my heart,
So devoid of guile or art,
Sad the day when we must part,
My little, household darling.

Laughing eyes of heaven's hue,
Fringed by lashes soft and brown,
Piercing one quite through and through—
Is there in all the town;
Every dimple in her cheek
Seems to count a true love kiss;
Clinging to my throbbing heart,
Earth can bring no greater bliss.
Chorus.—She's the idol of my heart, etc.

Cupids nestle in her hair
And upon her breast recline;
Lovely she beyond compare—
In short, perfect is mine.
Clasping thus the fairy form
To my breast with tender strain,
Raining blissful kisses down,
Seems I am young again.
Chorus.—She's the idol of my heart, etc.

NEGRO MINSTRELS IN NEW ZEALAND.

Wherever an American can get a foothold there may he be found, searching for diamonds, or gold, introducing new inventions or presenting entertainments for the amusement of the people. Minstrels have made their mark in the remotest portions of the world. Below we present a programme of an entertainment given in Dunedin, New Zealand, by the Christy Minstrels, under the direction of Wash. Norton and J. Steele, both of whom are now members of Bryant's Minstrels performing in this city.

ARCH STREET THEATRE, PHILADELPHIA, IN 1846.

We present a bill of the play of the old Arch, Philadelphia, of twenty-six years ago. The prices of admission were as follows, and it will no doubt wonder how managers contrived to make the theatre pay at such rates, but it must be understood that rents, salaries, and everything connected with theatricals were correspondingly low in those days, and the people could live well at the cheap prices. CUPID'S FOIBLES, FOLLIES AND FANCIES.

CROQUET BY MOONLIGHT.

Out on the lawn in the evening grey,
Went Willie and Moll. I said "which way,"
And they both replied, "Croquet!" "Croquet!"

The evening was bright with the moon's own ray,
And the lawn was light as though in full day—
From the gateway I looked to see Croquet.

Of "mallets" and balls the usual display;
The "hoops" all stood in arch array,
And I said to myself, soon we'll see Croquet.

But the mallets and balls unheeded lay,
And the maid and the youth, side by side, sat they,
And I thought to myself is that "Croquet?"

I saw the scamp—it was light as day—
Put his arm round her waist in a loving way,
And he pressed her hand. Was that Croquet?

While the red rover rolled forgotten away,
He whispered all that a lover should say,
And he kissed her lips. What a queer Croquet!

Silent they, 'neath the moon's bright ray,
But I knew by her blushes she said not "nay,"
And I thought in my heart, now that's Cro

The Empires overcame the Mutuals, scoring 19 against 10. The Wide Awakes lambasted the Unknowns, scoring 48 to 17. The Garden City Club walked into the Silver Stars; score, 30 to 24. The Welcomes were defeated by the Young Americas by a count of 19 to 6. The Grasshoppers had a hard tussle with the Lone Star, Jr., but came out victorious by the small score of 10 to 9. The Progress Club defeated the Eurekas; score, 27 to 18. The Southern Stars were vanquished by the Baltics; score, 28 to 13. The Shoo Flys beat the Kenos; score, 31 to 28. The Live Oaks were defeated by the Atlantics; score, 17 to 5.

EXCELSIOR vs. ATLANTICS.

These prominent Rhode Island clubs, the former of Cranston, the latter of Central Falls, played a match at the latter place on Aug. 24th, with the appended result:—

AMATEUR THREE MILE RACE.
Engelhardt Defeats Dealey.

Foremost among the amateur matches which have been decided upon American waters during the present season was the scullers' race between George Engelhardt, of the Seawanhaka Club, of Greenpoint, L. I., and Richard B. Deeley, of the Gulicks, of New York, which took place over the course of the Hudson Amateur Association, at Pleasant Valley, N. J., on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 28th. Ever since Dick's slip up on a supposed sure thing at the national regatta on the Schuylkill, last June, when the Greenpointer defeated him, John Lavens and Bill Cannon quite handily, a strong feeling of rivalry has existed between George and Deeley. The latter attributed his defeat to a foul which occurred when he was ahead of the fleet, and on July 15th he challenged Engelhardt, through the CLIPPER, to row a three-miler, for a prize valued at not less than $500. This was just what the Long Island sculler and his friends had been waiting for, and promptly signifying their willingness to make a match, a meeting was held during the ensuing week, at which articles were signed, the stipulations of which were that they should row three miles, with one turn, in shells, for a one hundred dollar prize. A degree of interest deeper than had been excited by any contest between amateurs hereabouts for a long time was manifested in this event, professional oarsmen and their friends being equally exercis d with amateurs. Deeley has long been well known as one of the best scullists on the membership list of the Gulicks, as well as a fine single oar puller; while his opponent, though having been rowing for years, was scarcely heard of outside of Greenpoint and Newtown Creek until last spring, when his Philadelphia victory came like the explosion of a bomb in the camp of the followers of Dick, who was a strong favorite for that race. As soon as the match was entered into the principals commenced work, Engelhardt securing the services of John Biglin as trainer, while Deeley was attended to by Ellis Ward, with Bill Cannon as assistant. The former took his rowing exercise on Newtown Creek, while Dick located himself in the vicinity of the course chosen for the race, over which he took his daily breathers. Their methods being competent and themselves willing laborers in the aquatic vineyard, they showed in excellent condition on the day. In anticipation of a rush to witness the race, several steamers had been chartered, including the Seth Low, on board which were the friends of Deeley; the Fort Lee and F. W. Devoe, containing those who wanted to see George win, the Devoe being also used by the referee and judges, and the P. C. Schultz, having on board members of the Nassau and New York Athletic Club. Each of these was crowded with sight-seers, while on shore were assembled a large concourse, who had gone up in the regular boats to the Valley and Fort Lee. Nearly all the amateur oarsmen of any note were among the throng, while scattered here and there we encountered numerous other prominent personages, including Judge Shandley, John Kelly (the Hudson street Adonis, his countenance illumined by that chronic smile), John C. Heenan, John, Jim and Barney Biglin, Judge Charley Elliott and his brother Tom, Jim Lee, Robt. Lindsay, Dick Risdon, Nelse Kirk, Gil and Ellis Ward, Harry Buermeyer, Fred. Sinzer, Ryan, the painter; Col. W. E. Van Wyck, Barney Aaron, Jim Delaney, Pat Lynch, John O'Brien, George Roahr, Connolly, Mr. Glenny and Mr. H. Hayes. The water in the neighborhood of the starting point was dotted with barges, gigs, shells and working boats; a six-oared crew being in attendance upon each of the contestants. The day was precisely what was required for the race, the sun being obscured by clouds, a pleasant breeze blowing from the northwest, the tide being at the full, and the bosom of the river almost without a ripple. At half-past five o'clock the men took up their positions as follows, No. 1 being next the shore:—

GEORGE ENGELHARDT, of the Seawanhaka Club; 21 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, 133lbs.; colors, blue. Boat Judge Elliott, 30 feet 6 inches long, 19 inches wide, 8 inches deep, and weighing 285lbs.; built of Spanish cedar, by C. D. Elliott, of Greenpoint.

RICHARD B. DEELEY, of the Gulick Club, 23 years old, 5 feet 7¼ inches in height, 134lbs.; colors, scarlet. Dimensions of boat:—28 feet long, 10¾ inches wide, 5¼ inches deep, weighing less than his opponent's; built of Spanish cedar, by Geo. Roahr, of this city.

A good send off was obtained at the first essay, the signal being given at 5.35. Engelhardt was slower than his adversary in star ing, the latter quickly assuming the most favorable position and having a head of nearly a length after going four hundred yards. Deeley was wielding the paddles at the rate of about forty-one to the minute, George pulling about thirty-nine. The pace at which Dick was going was too hot to keep up, however, and he now began to slacken a little, and as he did so the steady, telling stroke of the Greenpoint lad gradually reduced the distance between the boats. In less than three minutes from the start position was reversed, George leading, and in another half minute Dick was two good lengths to the bad, and receiving the full benefit of Engelhardt's wash, which didn't increase his prospects of success a particle. The passengers on board the Fort Lee and Devoe were beside themselves with joy, and in response to the shouts of exultation and encouragement, their favorite let out a few more links of speed, and leaving his antagonist further and further in the rear at each sweep of the blades through the calm waters, opened a gap of a dozen lengths or more, with which advantage he whipped around the mile and a half stake-boat, and straightening up, pulled away for home. Time at this point:—Engelhardt, 11:40; Dealey, 12:00. George had the race as good as won now, and on the return journey he did not find it necessary to bring all his powers into play, though Dick struggled most gamely to overtake him and turn the tide of success in his favor; but though encouraged by the shouts of sympathising friends, his exertions were without avail. George being not only able to keep well in advance without trouble, but to increase his vantage at will. The latter dropped down to thirty-four on the way up, allowing Deeley, who spirted frequently, to get within three lengths of him at the finish. Time, 25:10, which was excellent. Engelhardt's victory was hailed with a storm of cheers, ringing of bells and shrieking of steam whistles, and the manner in which it was won stamps him as a real "corker." The race over, the steamers turned their bows homeward, landing their passengers at the Thirty-fourth street, Christopher street and other docks, in good season. Referee, starter and timekeeper, Geo. Springstein, of the Atalanta Club. Judges, Chas. B. Elliott for Engelhardt, Robt. Lindsay for Deeley.

MATCH RACE BETWEEN THE MAUD AND W. F. DAVIS.—On Tuesday, Aug. 27th, the match between the sloop yachts Maud, owned by W. E. Morris, and the W. F. Davis, the property of G. W. Davis, was decided on the Sound, the course being from a stake-boat lying off the Neptune House, New Rochelle, to another off Glen Cove and return, to be sailed twice over, making a distance of twenty miles in all. The match originated from a challenge issued by the Harlem Yacht Club, to which the owner of the Maud belongs. The latter having beaten the Davis in a regatta a short time previously, she was the favorite in the betting. Her length is 27 feet 11 inches, six inches longer than her opponent; consequently the Davis was allowed one minute. At the start the wind was blowing fresh from the southwest, and the boats at the signal went off at a spanking rate, the Maud starting thirty seconds after her antagonist. The Maud, sailing much closer to the wind than the Davis, gained rapidly upon her, and had the latter not been first benefited by the veering of the wind to the north, she would have passed her before arriving at the turning-stake. As it was, she was so close upon her heels at that point that it became necessary to luff in order to avoid a collision with the Davis. The mark-boat was the Wm. Fletcher, and as the Maud luffed that vessel made two revolutions of her wheel, entangling the bowsprit of the Maud therein and cutting a hole in her side. She was quickly cleared, however, and bounding away after the Davis, soon caught and passed her, passing the starting point half a minute in advance. The balance of the race does not require description, as the Maud continued to increase the space between her and the Davis, finally reaching the home stake-boat the second time thirty-three minutes ahead. The judges were Messrs. J. M. Sawyer and Van Nostrand.

A YACHT REGATTA took place at Lynn, Mass., on Aug. 24th, in which only three sloop-rigged yachts started, viz., the Magic, Eva, and George Manson, the first of a series of races for a silver cup to the first boat winning two. The result of this event was as follows:—

Name.	Owner.	Measurement.	Time.
Marie	Neal	39.5	7.34.07
Eva	Lang	35.0	2.57.20
George Manson	Poor	25.0	2.39.18

The Magic made an allowance of four minutes and ten seconds to each of the others, consequently by corrected time she beat the Eva nine minutes and three seconds, and the Manson eleven minutes and one second. Distance, about eleven miles.

THE CHAMPION PENNANTS of the Union Club, of Long Island, were to have been raced for on the 28th ult., the Lavinc and Vesta to contend for the first class flag, and the Sophia and Lottie B. for the second class. The latter did not appear, leaving the Sophia to go over the course alone and take the prize; while the Lavine withdrew shortly after starting.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF AMATEUR OARSMEN.
Definition of an Amateur and Adoption of a Code of Racing Rules.

Some months ago the first steps toward the accomplishment of a much-desired object were instituted by Messrs. Wm. B. Curtis, of the Chicago Athletic Club, and James Watson, of the Atalanta Boat Club, of this city, who caused a pamphlet to be printed, containing definitions of the word amateur, supplemented by another representing the existing unsatisfactory condition of things among our amateur oarsmen and athletes, and embodying the views of Mr Curtis upon what should constitute the dividing line between them and professionals. Copies of these pamphlets were mailed to nearly all the clubs throughout the country, and subsequently a call was issued for a convention of delegates from the different clubs favorable to a reformatory movement, the business to be transacted by said convention being as follows:—

First—To establish a national definition of an amateur.

Second—To elect a judiciary committee to decide all disputed cases.

Third—To establish a national regatta.

Fourth—To revise the laws of boat racing.

Pursuant to this call, a number of delegates assembled at De Garmo's Hall, corner of Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street, on the morning of Aug. 28th. There being a general desire to get to business as speedily as possible, as these present wanted to see the race between Engelhardt and Dealey, Mr. Watson was, on motion, elected chairman, and, after calling the convention to order and briefly stating the business which had brought them together, he appointed a committee of three on credentials. This committee reported favorably in regard to the delegates named below:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—West Philadelphia Club, J. C. Pinkerton, E. M. Harl; Crescent, F. Ward, E. R. Barnhurst; Pennsylvania, John Cullin, F. W. Murphy; Malta, E. G. Lukens, J. Bettlehemer; Quaker City, George W. Parker, J. D. Ferguson; Undine, Wm. R. Tuckis; Vesper, H. McMillan, R. C. Mingus.

New York City.—Atalanta Club, James Watson, Russell Withers, Alden S. Swan; Gulick, Timothy Shea, John W. Browning, Wm. Spear; Friendship, P. S. Biglan, John Dougan, James L. McCahill.

Brooklyn, L. I.—Columbia Club, Messrs. Purse and Foster, to alternate with Messrs. Osborne and Johnson.

Rochester, N. Y.—Riverside Rowing Club, Curtis H. Haskin, T. E. Parsons.

Jersey City.—Oneida Club, E. C. Neilson, D. S. Gregory, W. T. Walsh.

Boston, Mass.—Union Club, Henry R. Rice; Jamaica Club, George A. Comins.

Detroit, Mich.—Excelsior Club, W. C. Stoepel, Joseph Johnston.

Yonkers, N. Y.—Vesper Club, Ben. Mason, Wm. J. Carr.

Saginaw, Mich.—Wah-Wah-Sum, Ezra Rust.

Bergen Point, N. J.—Argonauta Rowing Association, E. P. White, A. H. Warner, W. F. Hotbole.

Washington, D. C.—Analostan Club, C. L. Prescott, M. Bailey.

As a number of others were present, unprovided with the requisite documents, it was moved and carried that they should sign a form, which should answer as a voucher that they had been authorized to act. They were as follows:—

Harlem, N. Y.—Athletic Club, H. E. Buermeyer, H. G. Meeker; Nassau, J. H. Miller, John C. Babcock; Gramercy, H. J. Railton; Sappho, H. M. Knapp.

West Brighton, S. I.—Neptune Club, W. R. Wemple.

Newark, N. J.—Triton Club, S. N. Penrose; Passaic, C. H. Roberts.

Philadelphia.—Schuylkill Navy, James M. Ferguson.

Yonkers, N. Y.—Palisade Club, E. A. Rollins.

Providence, R. I.—Narragansett Club, A. F. Dexter.

Albany, N. Y.—Mutual Club, Charles Piepenbrink.

A committee on permanent organization was then appointed, consisting of Messrs. Pinkerton, Mason, Babcock, Parsons and Johnson. They reported in favor of the following gentlemen, all of whom were unanimously accepted:—President, James M. Ferguson; vice president, A. F. Dexter; secretary, W. C. Stoepel. On motion, a committee was appointed to report on the definition of the term amateur, and to draft a code of rules for the government of amateur races. Messrs. Dexter, Pinkerton, Babcock, Rice, Watson, Parsons and Roberts composed the committee. A motion being made that a committee be appointed to draft rules and regulations for the government of the association, many delegates arose and stated that they had no authority to pledge their clubs to any association; besides, it would be necessary to hear the views of the convention as to what constituted an amateur oarsman before any permanent action could be taken. The motion was then put and voted down, with only one dissenting voice. An adjournment until the following morning was then in order.

Upon re-assembling, at ten o'clock A. M., on August 29th, twenty-three clubs were represented, and after the minutes of the previous session had been read and adopted, the president called for the report of the committee of seven. Mr. Pinkerton, chairman, read the report, which was accepted, and afterwards heard in clauses. After considerable discussion, and then attention of each clause separately by vote, the section defining an amateur was adopted as a whole, with the exception of the substitution of the words "or in manual labor on the water" for "on the water." The only objection raised to the rules was in regard to the final section, which rendered it obligatory that in turning races the stakeboats should be rounded from starboard to port, which is at variance with prevailing customs. A lively debate took place over this, a number of the delegates insisting that the manner of turning should be left to the option of the competing oarsmen, or to the umpire, because of the difference in the rigging of the boats. It was finally moved that the words be altered to "from port to starboard." This amendment was adopted by a vote of 15 to 11. The remainder of the rules were unanimously adopted.

Mr. Watson moved that each club contribute the sum of $10, to defray the expenses of the convention, which was carried, after which the delegates took a recess until three o'clock P. M. On re-assembling the necessity of holding a national regatta was discussed, but as the majority of the delegates were not prepared to vote upon that matter, without instructions from their clubs, and as it would be necessary to form an association before taking such action, the motion fell to the ground. On motion of Mr. Parker the committee on the definition of an amateur and laws was continued as a judiciary committee, with the addition of two members, viz.:—J. C. Bailey and J. Johnson. The committee also empowered to elect their own officers, fill vacancies, and to call meetings of the convention whenever they may consider it advisable. The committee then proceeded to consider pointed the following officers:—President, J. C. Babcock; treasurer, J. C. Pinkerton; secretary, Jas. Watson. After tendering a vote of thanks to the president and officers, and to the press, the convention adjourned sine die, having accomplished with dispatch and completeness the objects for which it was called. Below we present the decision of that body regarding what constitutes an amateur and the laws of boat racing adopted:—

DEFINITION OF AN AMATEUR OARSMAN.

We define an amateur oarsman to be—one who does not enter in an open competition, or for either a stake, public or admission money, or entrance fees, or competes with or against a professional for any prize, or who has never taught, pursued or assisted in the pursuit of athletic exercises as a means of livelihood, or has not been employed in or about boats, or in manual labor on the water.

CODE OF BOAT RACING LAWS.

1. All boat races shall be started in the following manner:—The starter, on being satisfied that the competitors are ready, shall give the signal to start.

2. If the starter considers the start false he shall at once recall the boats to their stations, and any boat refusing to start again shall be disqualified.

3. Any boat not at its post at the time specified shall be liable to be disqualified by the umpire.

4. The umpire may act as starter as he thinks fit. When he does not act the starter shall be subject to his control.

5. Each boat shall keep the water thrown up behind the race, and any boat departing from its own water will do so at its peril.

6. A boat's own water is its straight course, parallel with those of the other competing boats from the station assigned to it at starting to the finish.

7. The umpire shall be sole judge of a boat's own water and proper course during the race.

8. No fouling whatever shall be allowed; the boat committing a foul shall be disqualified.

9. It shall be considered a foul when, after the race has commenced, any competitor by his oar, boat or person, comes into contact with the oar, boat or person of another competitor, unless in the opinion of the umpire such contact is so slight as not to influence the race.

10. The umpire may, during a race, caution any competitor when in danger of committing a foul.

11. The umpire, when appealed to, shall decide all questions as to a foul.

12. A claim of foul must be made to the judge or the umpire by the competitor himself before getting out of his boat.

13. In case of a foul the umpire shall have the power; first, to place the boats, except the boat committing the foul, which is disqualified, in the order in which they came in; second, to order the boats engaged in the race, other than the boat committing the foul, to row over again on the same or another day; third, to restart the qualified boats from the place where the foul was committed.

14. Every boat shall abide by its accidents.

15. No boats shall be allowed to accompany a competitor for the purpose of directing his course or affording him other assistance. The boat receiving such direction or assistance shall be disqualified at the discretion of the umpire.

16. The jurisdiction of the umpire extends over the race and all matters connected with it from the time the race is specified to start until its final termination, and his decision in all cases shall be final and without appeal.

17. Any competitor refusing to abide by the decision or to follow the direction of the umpire shall be disqualified.

18. The umpire, if he thinks proper, may reserve his decision, provided that in every case such decision be given on the day of the race.

19. Boats shall be started by their sterns, and shall have completed their course when the bows reach the finish.

20. In turning races each competitor shall have a separate turning stake and shall turn from port to starboard. Any competitor may turn any stake other than his own, but does so at his peril.

THE YACHTS Al. Dager and Albert T. Eggleton, of the Delaware fleet, have, we learn, been matched to sail from the Water Works wharf, Philadelphia, to Chester, Pa., and return, to a buoy opposite Palmer street wharf, on Monday, Sept. 9th, for a purse of $200 and the champion flag. The race is to be sailed in accordance with the rules of the Philadelphia Yacht Club, except that each boat is to be allowed to carry a five feet sounding pole, half an inch in diameter. The boats are to start at 9.30 A. M., returning before 7 P. M., or no race.

TWO RACES came off at Fresh Pond Grove, near Boston, Mass., on Aug. 19th, on the occasion of the annual picnic of the North End Fishing Club. The first was for four-oared working boats, and was won by the Pilot; the second, sculls, was won by E. McEvoy.

A DEPOSIT of £10 a side was placed in the hands of Harry Kelley on Aug. 14th, to bind a pair-oared match for £50 or £100 a side, on the Tyne, Eng., between Jas. Percy and Ralph Heptslewhite on the one side, and Robt. Bagnall and Wm. Armstrong on the other.

THE STAPLETON, S. I., YACHT CLUB held their third annual regatta on Aug. 29th. There were five entries for the first-class and three for the second-class prize. The winner of the former was the Nora, and of the latter the Albert.

W. LASHLEY defeated R. Nixon in a race in best and best boats, for £15 a side, on the lower reaches of the Tyne, Eng., on Aug. 10th, winning by a length.

JAS. ELLIOTT AND J. EARLE rowed two miles and a half, for £30, on the Wear, Eng., on Aug. 12th, the former winning pretty much as he pleased by three lengths.

SINGULAR DEFORMITY.—Quite recently a young man arrived at Nashville, Tenn., from Pennsylvania, and has since been about that city asking alms on account of physical deformities, which unfit him for work by which he might earn a living. His feet resemble the claws of an animal, having on each two long toes very wide apart. His hands have a similar formation, the fingers on each being so remote from each other as to prevent them from being closed together in the hand. His deformity is of a most remarkable nature, being the first instance of the kind ever witnessed there. Why don't he apply to the prince of showmen or some other prominent exhibitor of unnatural curiosities?

A CANINE FANCIER ABROAD.—The migratory fever is not confined to judges, politicians, physicians, parsons, or lawyers; they all take in Europe who make money enough out of others to do so, even to ye lealer in that useful animal called the "dorg," as we learn by a private letter that Butler, the oldest dog man in America, is now sporting his figure on Piccadilly, when not down among the dog kennels.

A SUCCESSFUL SALMON CHASE.—The salmon fisheries of the Columbia river have been unusually successful this season. In the month of July there were taken 170,000 salmon, weighing, when dressed, 2,700,000 pounds. For the four salmon catching months there were caught in the lower Columbia 333,500 fishes, weighing, when dressed, 5,300,000 pounds.

THE TURF.

RACING AT LONG BRANCH, N. J.
The Largest Field on Record in the Four Mile Heat Races.

THE STEEPLE CHASE WON BY LOCHIEL, AND THE FOUR MILE HEAT RACE BY KING HENRY.

The Monmouth Park Association gave an extra day's racing at Long Branch on Thursday, Aug. 29th, which proved a decided success. Mr. John Chamberlin, the manager, made the liberal offer of two purses of $1,000 and $2,500 respectively for two races; the former purse for a steeple chase handicap for all horses, and the latter for a four mile heat race; the entrance in both races being free. Although the announcement of these purses was only made the week before, while the Saratoga meeting was in progress, and but little time was allowed the owners of horses to enter, the latter promptly responded; ten entries in the steeple chase, and nine in the four mile heat race, testifying to the popularity of "Prince John," and the desire of owners and trainers to co-operate with him in making a good day's sport.

The morning of Thursday, Aug. 29th, dawned inauspiciously, for the dense masses of dark clouds which hid the sun indicated rain, and caused hundreds in this city to believe that a postponement of the racing would be made. But the management declared that the programme should be carried out, "rain or shine," and fortune favored them, for about midday the clouds cleared away, and the prospect looked bright for a good day's sport. Carriages began to arrive at the course in rapid succession and continued to do so until long after the hour announced for the racing to commence, the starting being delayed in consequence. As many as 2,000 tickets at $1 each were sold for admission to the people's stand. The course was in excellent order before the racing commenced, but after the first heat of the four mile heat race, the heavy shower of rain that fell made it heavy and the going bad.

The Steeple chase had originally ten entries, but the non-acceptance of some, and the non-arrival from Saratoga of others, reduced the field of starters to three—Mr. Hart's Lochiel, Lobella and Sorrel Dan, which latter was so stale that he could not run, Flora McIvor and Lochnivar were lamed, and Tammany, McGregor and Astronomer were absentees. The race proved a highly sensational one, for both Lobella and Lochiel fell and unshipped their riders while making the second circuit of the course, and galloped off to the far side of the enclosure. Midgely, who rode Lochiel, was stunned by the fall, but Henry, Lobella's jockey, although shaken, got up and ran after his mare and remounted her, Hugh Gaffney catching and mounting Lochiel at the same time. In the meantime Sorrel Dan had bolted the course, but had been brought back by his rider, who, seeing the coup-de-temps that had occurred to his two opponents, continued to go around the course by himself, taking the jumps without a mistake and at his leisure, coming home alone. The fielders were jubilant at his supposed victory, but they were premature in their exultation, for a patrol judge, who had been posted in the low ground where the horses disappear from the view of the spectators, reported to the judges that he passed on the outside of a flag there when he bolted the course, and although he warned him of his error, he would not return and correct it, as he could easily have done. Lochiel and Lobella, having been re-mounted, continued the race from the point where they had fallen, and, of an exciting contest, Lochiel came in first. The judges decided that Sorrel Dan was disqualified for not going the proper course, and gave the race to Lochiel and the second money to Lobella. This decision was immensely gratifying to the backers of the favorite, who had laid heavy odds on his winning and had given up for lost their investments when they saw him fall and throw his rider. The latter, Midgely, laid insensible for some minutes, and fears were entertained that he was killed, but he soon recovered, and it was now found that no bones had been broken, and no injury received beyond a severe shaking.

The four mile heat race will long be memorable as having brought out the largest field of runners ever known in a race of the kind, seven horses coming to the post out of the nine entered. At Charleston, S. C., in 1845, six started, when Sally Morgan beat Botaw, Hero, Regent, Oregon and a Trustee filly. At Memphis, Tenn., the same year, five ran, when Fanny King beat Croton, Arrah Neal, Mary Rayland, and a filly by Glencoe. At Lexington, Ky., in 1832, six started, when John Diamond beat Lithgow, Little Pike, Little Mischief, Nelly Hardin and Jenny Lind; and the same number ran at Broad Rock, Va., in 1836, when Philo beat Frankfort, One Eyed Joe, Cordelia Reed, Florida and Sam Letcher, in three heats. In this race, however, although the largest in the number of starters on record, there was not a single four mile horse of repute, and not one that had ever won at the distance; for although Defender had been a winner of two and three mile heats, he had failed to score a victory at four mile heats. There was no cause which cannot be surpassed for speed and bottom. His turf career has been a chequered one, Mr. Sanford having purchased him when a suckling of Mr. R. A. Alexander of Kentucky for $2,000. He trained and ran him at three and four years old unsuccessfully; then broke him to harness, and used him as a carriage horse, and finally made a present of him to a lady to be used in that capacity. Not liking him, she returned him to Mr. Sanford, who this spring put him in training again, and started him at the Jerome Park June meeting in a mile dash, where he ran unplaced to Alarm. At the Long Branch August meeting he started him unsuccessfully in a selling race, won by Alberta, and the same night, disgusted with his running, he gave him away to Mr. James McCormick, a New Orleans turfman. His new owner entered him in the Consolation Purse the next day, which he won, Mr. McCormick winning a large stake by his victory. He started twice unsuccessfully at the Saratoga August meeting, and at Long Branch won the four mile heat race with the odds (with French Poule, of $250 to $5 against him. Defender cuts a sorry figure, and has evidently lost all form, and his winning at Saratoga in the Summer Handicap was apparently more by luck than merit.

THE STEEPLE CHASE,

a handicap, for a purse of $1,000, divided into $700, $200 and $100, for the winner, second and third horses, over about three miles of fair hunting country, had three starters out of a field of ten entries. These were Coffin and Lawrence's bay gelding Lochiel, 4 years, 150lbs., ridden by Wm. Midgely; James Thompson's brown mare, Lobella, aged, 145lbs., ridden by James Henry, and J. Boughrum's chesnut gelding Sorrel Dan, aged, 138lbs., ridden by Brown. The pool betting was as follows:—

Lochiel	$100	$40	$25	$100
Lobella	40	30	25	35
Sorrel Dan	11	10	6	13

Lobella took the lead, followed by Lochiel and Sorrel Dan, the former rushing in front after jumping the first leap, a stone wall in front of the club house, and leading Lobella six lengths over the next succeeding jumps. Going down the hill Sorrell Dan overpowered his rider, and bolting, galloped along instead of crossing the regular track, and was not stopped until he had gone half way up the home stretch. This apparently extinguished his chance, for the other two made the circuit of the course, both taking the various leaps in fine style, Lobella leading, until on the second time round, at the stone wall in the inner field, Lobella came down a cropper, throwing her rider, Henry, pretty heavily. Lochiel was close behind, also stumbled as he rose at the leap, and rolling over, threw Midgely heavily, the latter lying motionless for some minutes, causing the spectators to conclude that he was either killed or fa ally injured. He was carried away and in a short time came to, no bones having been broken. Both horses ran away into the lower part of the enclosure, where they were caught and re-mounted, Hugh Gaffney jumping on Lochiel and Henry on the mare. In the meantime Sorrell Dan had gone the course for the second time, all the rest being drawn to finish

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, Sept. 2d, '72.

August went out in a cold sweat. For four weeks we ad been stewed, boiled and roasted in our own shells—for about the same period we had a succession of destructive storms; the lightning flashed and performed many wonderful freaks; the thunder cracked and roared and rolled from shore to shore; wild tornadoes ravaged the land like patent roaches in the kitchens of our first class hotels; yet with these atmospheric irruptions and watery downpourings, the heat continued without so much as the "five minutes for refreshments" intermission given to hungry travelers by soulless railroad corporations; but with the end of those four weeks of toil and trouble, boil and bubble, fire, bang, boom, August exhausted its diabolical resources, and, for the remaining three days, humanity breathed an atmosphere fit for ye conventional gods, and all the earth was glad, me boys, and all the earth was glad. And so, with this delightful change, peoples have taken a fresh lease of life, and business feels the ravivifying influence of the salubrious ozone of the salt sea waves, have left those summery haunts for the city's cooling shades, for this is the time "when the swallowers homeward fly." Broadway is once more to be seen in its brightest colors; the return of the refugees and butterflies of fashion, with the remnants of their seaside costumes floating to the breeze, or flashing in the noon day sun like a week's wash—lending brilliancy and variety to the never-ending realistic panorama of our gay and spirituelle Broadway; for the stale and profitless harness of Long Branch and Saratoga and Cape May and Newport can be made to do new and novel duty in the city, whose toilers have been hewing and splitting and weaving all the summer long, and the sight of the well worn summer toggery awakens an interest in the breast of the man whose light waisted pocket book prevented him from inspecting the showy harness when it was first brought out to public view at the favorite summer resorts. Things indeed look lively again, and indications, if we can judge from a hasty glance, point to a stunning fall trade, for crops have turned up full, and croakers have croaked in vain. In this vein we court our muse of poesy, and call forth from her well stored vaults the appended

WELCOME HOME.

The town again begins to seethe, and everything is gay—
The weeks have left their coy retreats at Long Branch and Cape May;
And faces that we long have missed appear upon the street—
Yes, all the old familiar ones again we fondly greet.
Rejoice ye patrons of "high art," and, critics, tilt your pens,
For here's our favorite Missis Wood got back amongst her friens';
The name of Miss Hersee, we see, appended to a bill,
And here's the Lauris, who for life can't keep their "trotters" still;
While Charley White throws down the glove, and Emerson begulling,
With other jolly corks combine to bring the folks up smiling.

.....Many insane persons have an idea that we know everything and can do everything, and we don't wonder at it; considering the number of questions we have to answer every week on almost every imaginable and unimaginable subject. Here is a sample of what we have to endure, but the writer's name we omit, because he really "means business," as our non-fighting, peaceful pugilistic friends might say. Read this fiery epistle and say if the sorrows of Werther were anything compared to our own:—

August the 23d, 1872.

EDITOR NEW YORK CLIPPER.—My Dear Sir.—I would be very much obliged to you if you could let me know how you go for holding a red hot bar of iron in your hand without burning you, etc. Yours,

Our friend has evidently been misinformed as to our abilities in that line, as we do not hold red hot bars of iron in our hands under any circumstances; we once picked up a red hot cent, believing it to be fresh from the mint, but, instead, it was fresh from the fiery furnace of a devilish blacksmith, who enjoyed our discomfiture as he saw us lose our hold. Since then we do not handle red hot things at all. And here's another curious little note in their respective characters, and the balance of the note in their respective characters, and the balance of the cast were satisfactory in the little that was required of them. The dialogue needs considerable pruning, and the performance did not close on the opening night until about a quarter before one o'clock. The Majilions performed during the evening the same fantastical act in which they originally appeared in this country. They have lost none of their suppleness nor agility, and were the recipients of much applause. The Lauri family were quite successful in their impersonation of the apes, and John and M'me Lauri were conspicuously seen in the Parandole. The attendance on the opening night was very large, every portion of the auditorium being filled, and many persons were disappointed by not even obtaining standing room. The spectacle was acted during the week, and is announced for continued representation. Among the improvements made by Mr. Daly is the opening of a free exhibition of pictures in the large vestibule. The pictures have been loaned by the artists or owners, and can be seen daily from 9 o'clock until 5 P. M., without charge. The following is a list of those now on exhibition, which from time to time will give place to others:—"The Sixth Day of Creation," by Gustave Brion; "The Rocky Mountains," by Albert Bierstadt; "The Jung Frau," by Lindiar; "Thoughts of Love," by Edouard Dubufe; "Judith with the Head of Holofernes," a copy from Riedel by Minor; "Early Morning in Paris," by C. Bruni; "Julia Dean as Beatrice," supposed by the younger Jarvis; "The Finding of Atala," artist unknown; "The Shipwreck and the Wreckers," by Lumminais; "Moses on Mount Horeb," by William Page, and never before exhibited in public; "Washington Reconnoitering," by Lewis Brown; "The Dancing Girl," artist unknown; "Portrait of Alfred Tennyson," by B. F. Reinhart; "Ristori," by Sarony; "The Love Letter," by J. F. Engel; "Mrs. Scott-Siddons as Mary Stewart," by Sarony; "Episode of the Franco-German War," artist not announced; "Portrait of Miss Kellogg," by Sarony; "Washington at Valley Forge," by Matteson; "The Widow," by J. H. Beard; "Fruit," artist not announced; "Shoeing the Horse," artist unannounced; "Interlachen, Switzerland," by Mrs. Oakes; "Elias Raising the Dead," by Mascrolle; "The Dying Cavalier," by J. F. Engel; "Grant Behind Dexter," by Ehninger, and "Farewell," a statue, by C. Buberl.

Col. T. A. Brown, dramatic agent, 714 Broadway, is prepared to negotiate engagements for Laura Keene, with her extensive repertoire; Maude Davidson, walking lady; Maffit and Bartholomew, pantomimists, and he advertises for first class variety artists.

WILLIAM AYMAR, clown, arrived in town during the past week. He has been with the Newton Brothers' Forest City Circus, which closed its season at Minersville, Pa., Aug. 24th.

EMERSON'S MINSTRELS commence a season at Lina Edwin's Theatre, this evening, Sept. 2d. They have a strong company, and have met with much success in their travels from California to New York.

EDWIN FORREST is to give Shakesperean readings at Steinway Hall, Nov. 19th and 20d.

P. T. BARNUM has leased the iron building in Fourteenth street, formerly occupied by Lent's Circus, and will open it early in the fall with equestrian performances. It is said that he will erect a building for the exhibition of wild animals adjacent thereto.

THE SIXTEENTH SEASON of the Bryant's Minstrels was commenced at their opera house in Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue, on Monday evening, August 26th, under the personal management of Dan Bryant. Fourteen people appeared in the first part. After the introductory overture William Dwyer sang "Don't be Angry Darling;" Dave Reed, a new song, entitled "Sweet Susan Jane;" Charles Templeton, "Sweetly Thine Eyes, Love," Dan Bryant, "Down by the Weeping Willows," which was thrice encored; Harry Norman, who possesses a tenor voice of much power and sweetness, the new song called "Don't Go, Mollie Darling," and a medley, introducing old time airs, wound up that portion of the entertainment. The witticisms were fresh, the instrumentation good and the quartet excellent. Dan Bryant and Dave Reed occupied the ends and W. H. Brockway officiated as interlocutor. The olio opened with the performances of Leon, who was rapturously received. He sang "When Sammy Comes Home," and the spoken dialogue evoked roars of laughter. In response to a re-call he gave such an excellent imitation of a German prima donna that he was again summoned before the audience, when he performed a dance which met with favor. He was costumed with taste, and his make-up and acting were excellent. A sketch entitled "The New Railroad" introduced the old favorite, Neise Seymour, who, in conjunction with Dan Bryant, created much merriment. Wash. Norton danced a "champion breakdown," which was distinguished for excellence of time, rapidity of action and the great variety of steps introduced. He was loudly applauded, and he then favored the audience with a dance even more remarkable than the first. "Lischen and Frischen" was then performed by Leon and Edwin Kelly, the latter making his first appearance at that theatre. The performance, barring that it was too long, proved highly diverting. Morrisey and Emerson, in their double clog essence, proved themselves excellent performers. A sketch called "Across the Continent" gave Dave Reed and W. H. Brockway an opportunity to display their histrionic abilities, which was fully taken advantage of. J. H. Steele, by his performance of a favorite air, with variations, upon the violoncello, proved that he is a master of that instrument. He is certainly among the best performers we have ever heard in a minstrel hall. An amusing sketch, in three scenes, called "Dodging for a Wife," introduced Wash. Norton in a female character, and afforded Dan. Bryant, Neise Seymour, Edwin Kelly and other principal members of the company a good opportunity for acting. The company, as a whole, is excellent, and the attendance has been good throughout the week, the lower portion of the auditorium being fully occupied and the gallery fairly filled.

JOHN B. HOWLAND, an actor who for some years was connected with various theatres in this city, and during the past three seasons with companies traveling in the south and west, is, we regret to say, confined to his residence in this city by dangerous illness. The attendant physician has pronounced his malady—consumption—incurable. What money Mr. Howland had saved has been exhausted in the purchase of medicines, and he now finds himself reluctantly compelled to appeal to his professional brethren for relief. Donations may be sent to him in care of the CLIPPER, an acknowledgement of which will be made in these columns. We doubt not that the members of his profession will contribute to the relief of a brother in sore distress, and do all in their power to smooth the pathway to those dark portals through which we all must sooner or later pass.

THE SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS, under the management of Birch, Wambold and Backus, inaugurated their first season at the St. James Theatre, in Twenty-eighth st., near Broadway, on Monday evening, Aug. 26th. After an introductory overture, arranged by Sig. Mullaly, the musical director, C. B. Fredericks, sang a ballad entitled "Tapping at the Garden Gate," which met with favor; Charley Backus convulsed the audience with laughter by his comical singing of "It's Hard to Love," and between the verses the clarionet player repeated the air after the manner of a neophyte playing that instrument, which was very ludicrous; D. S. Wambold, who has excellent voice, sang with due effect, "Mollie, Darling," which was encored; Billy Birch gave a comical description of "The Hunkey Doree Band," which was loudly re-demanded and conceded; Beaumont Read, who made his American debut, sang "Mother, Bear Me to the Window;" he has a very youthful appearance, and is a good alto singer; his voice has a good compass, and its tones are pure and sweet—later in the evening he sang Richard's song "Home of So Near and Yet So Far" both of his performances were loudly encored. The finale of the first part introduced imitations of birds, locusts, frogs, etc. Johnson and Powers, double song and dance men, opened the olio, meeting with much favor; their singing was good, but their excellence is seen in their dancing, in which they are experts. Charley Backus and Billy Birch, in a sketch called "Young Actors," held a comical conversation, in which Livingstone and Stanley and many local topics were discussed in a style that kept the audience in the best of humor. Billy Emmett sang some burlesque ballads which, although not very refined, pleased a portion of the audience. As he, evidently, was suffering from a severe cold, we were unable to decide upon his abilities. G. Withers performed a flute solo in an acceptable manner, and the comical "Vikings of Bittera" concluded the performances. There were eleven people on the stage during the first part, Billy Birch being on the bone end, Charley Backus on the tambo, and Joe Norrie, interlocutor. The instruments were two violins, a flute, clarionet, and violoncello. The auditorium looked bright and fresh, and the sceneries on the stage had been freshly painted. The attendance during the week was good, and we think the company have a fair prospect of successfully establishing themselves in their new minstrel home.

T. G. RIGGS acted during the week just closed at the Bowery Theatre, in John F. Poole's protean Irish drama entitled "Shin Fane," which was re-produced on Aug. 26th. Mr. Riggs possesses pronounced abilities for the successful portrayal of Irish characters, his brogue and make-up being excellent, and it is evident that he has closely studied the idiosyncracies of the natives of the Emerald isle. His performance of this has been slightly changed since its first production, which has improved it. It was well acted throughout, and attracted a good attendance during the week. The farce of a "Trip to Scarborough," acted under the title of "A trip to Williamsburg," opened the performances each evening. "Yankee" Locke commences an engagement on Sept. 2d, acting in a sensational drama, written expressly for him, entitled "Trumps."

THE LINGARD COMEDY COMPANY closed their engagement at the Olympic Theatre with the performances of Aug. 31st, which also terminated the summer season. "A Life's Dream" gave place on Wednesday evening to Robertson's three act comedy entitled "David Garrick," which was fairly acted, Mr. Lingard being David Garrick; E. S. Russell, Simon Ingot; W. F. Owen, Squire Chivey; B. F. Dunning, Mr. Jones; George St. Clair, Mr. Smith; J. Wickham, Mr. Brown; J. Wise, Thomas; Alice Dunning Lingard, Ada Ingot; Mrs. E. Le Brun, Mrs. Smith, and Miss Irene Lingard, Ada Araminta Brown. During the week Mr. Lingard appeared in a number of his new character sketches. The regular fall and winter season is to be inaugurated this evening, Sept. 2d, when the sensational drama entitled "The Red Pocket Book," will be acted for the first time in this city.

SIGNOR LOGRENZI, with his trained birds, white mice, and a cat, and Harry Macarthy, character vocalist, were the fresh appearances at the Athenæum on Aug. 26th, and both continued throughout the week. The birds—which consist of canaries, Java sparrows and paroquets—evince a high degree of training and intelligence, and they, apparently, implicitly obey the vocal commands of Sig. Logrenzi. They perform a number of interesting feats, among which may be mentioned the firing of a miniature cannon, walking a tight-rope, ascending and descending a ladder, and drawing a small carriage containing two birds, one costumed like a young lady of the period and the other as a coachman. The white mice are equally well trained, and the cat fires a cannon. During the time they are not performing, the cat, mice and birds occupy, in perfect harmony, a large cage placed at one end of the stage. The entertainment is pleasing, and it excites wonder as to the amount of patience that must have been bestowed upon their training, as well as to how they could ever have been made to understand what was required of them. Mr. Macarthy sang "Handsome Harry," "The Apple Woman's Lament," and "I'm Leaving Thee, Erin," which met with considerable favor. The minstrel portion of the entertainment was up to the usual standard. Maffit and Bartholomew, pantomimists, are announced to appear shortly.

MR. F. S. CHANFRAU acted the character of Old Pete, in the "Octoroon," at Wood's Museum in the evening and Saturday matinee performances of the week. It was a life-like portraiture. Well nigh perfect both in dialect and action, it stood forth a prototype of the southern negro. Efficient support was given by the company, J. J. Wallace deserving creditable mention for his acting of Salem Scudder; T. J. Connor was sufficiently vigorous as Jacob McKay; T. W. Keene acted George Peyton with care; Miss Jennie Carroll gave a truthful picture of Zoe, and frequently won the approbation of the audience; Miss Jennie Arnot was advantageously seen as Paul, and the others in the cast acted well their parts. At the usual matinees performances "The Serious Family" and "The Swiss Swains" made up the programme. The attendance during the week was good. This evening, Sept. 3d, "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler," is to be revived, and this week will be the last of Mr. Chanfrau's engagement.

"BLUE BEARD" was withdrawn from the boards of Wallack's Theatre after the performances of Aug. 31st, on which date a matinee performance thereof was given. It attracted a numerous attendance during the week. "Ixion," the burlesque in which Miss Lydia Thompson made her debut in America, is to form the attraction for the present week, and especial importance will be given to its initial performance by the American debut of Miss Rose Coghlan. Prior to the burlesque, a comedietta, called "A Happy Pair," will be presented, Miss Coghlan acting Mrs. Honeyton, and Edmund Leathes making his debut as Mr. Honeyton. Mr. Gilbert's comedy entitled "Pygmalion and Galatea," which had a long and successful run in London, Eng., during the past season, will be produced immediately after the close of the engagement of the Thompson burlesque troupe.

AT BOOTH'S THEATRE the success of "The Rells" continued the attraction of the week just closed, and was witnessed by a good number of people.

MISS LILLIAN HYLTON, vocalist, from England, made her American debut at the Theatre Comique on Aug. 26th. She possesses a good figure, a pleasing face, a sweet, powerful voice, and is entitled to good rank among music hall vocalists. A new local dramatic sketch, written by John F. Poole and entitled "Broadway by Daylight, Gaslight and Moonlight," was acted for the first time on Aug. 26th. The chief characters were impersonated by W. H. Whalley, Johnny Wild, Larry Tooley, and Miss Nellie Sanford, supported by the principal members of the company. Johnny Wild and Larry Tooley, who made their first appearances this season, performed respectively in Ethiopian and Dutch specialties. Billy West's banjo solos and songs were favorably received and created much merriment. Miss Ada Wray sang serio-comic songs. A shadow pantomime was given with comical effect. Miss Jennie Hughes sang some new ballads. Mackin and Wilson won much applause for their clever performances of a double song and dance, and Sydney Franks, during his comic song, performed a solo on a cornet. John Hart, Ethiopian comedian, and the Devere Brothers, statue clog dancers, are to appear Sept. 2d.

MISS EDITH CHALLIS has returned from England, and as she is announced to act at the Walnut street theatre, in Philadelphia, Pa., during Mr. Sothern's engagement, commencing Sept. 2d, the sensational paragraph going the rounds of the papers that she had inherited an annuity of ten thousand dollars a year, owing to some attentions bestowed upon an old lady in England, who subsequently died, and that she had retired from the stage, is, so far as the latter portion is concerned, disproved, and in all probability the whole affair was simply an advertising device. The paragraph in question had better be stopped at once.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG, Pauline Lucca, Rubenstein and Wieniowski, left Liverpool, Eng., for this city, on Aug. 31st.

JULE KENT, clown, will be added to James Robinson's circus at the commencement of the brief season at the corner of Madison avenue and Forty-fifth street, on Sept. 9th.

THE FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE was opened to a few invited guests on Saturday evening, Aug. 31st. The entire floors of the parquet and dress circle have been covered with new Wilton carpets of a crimson color, the patent folding chairs in the parquet painted a light blue color, and the spaces between the rows of seats enlarged. In the centre of the dome a large ventilator has been constructed, and the wire covering thereof ornately decorated with a painting symbolical of "The Crowning of Comedy." The walls of the auditorium have been elaborately frescoed, and the entire interior presents a bright and fresh appearance. The regular fall and winter season is to be commenced on Tuesday evening, Sept. 3d, when a new comedy, entitled, "Diamonds," from the pen of Mr. Bronson C. Howard, will be acted for the first time, and Miss Sara Jewett, who has achieved some reputation in private circles as an amateur actress, will make her debut on the dramatic stage as a professional actress.

TONY PASTOR'S OPERA HOUSE is announced to be reopened for the regular season on Sept. 16th, with the following chief members of the company:—Jennie Engel, serio-comic; Kittie Leroy, jig dancer; Clara Brooks, from London, Eng., character vocalist; Celia Iferd, vocalist; Gus Williams, Dutch comique; Harrigan and Hart, character duet ists; Billy Carter, banjoist; Hen. Mason and Harry Hernell, Ethiopian comedians; Johnny Manning, Irish comedian; Frank Girard, general performer; Charles Seabert, Marie and Amelia Gorenfio, and Tony Pastor.

CHARLES E. COLLINS, alias "The Cure," who has an extensive acquaintance with professional people, has leased the café adjoining the Olympic Theatre. A formal opening was given on Saturday evening, Aug. 31st, which was largely attended. Among the guests were Dan Bryant, Neise Seymour, Harry Eytinge, C. R. Thorne, Jr., J. E. Whiting, Harry Wall, Sam. Colville, H. H. Pratt, and numerous other professional persons and prominent citizens.

GEO. HOWARD, English tragedian and comedian, commences a starring engagement at the Bowery Theatre on Sept. 9th, and managers desiring to secure his services can address as per advertisement.

MRS. MACREADY is announced to act Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" at the Academy of Music during the week commencing Sept. 9th, with Milnes Levick as Gratiano.

Dramatic.

To Managers, Agents, Doorkeepers and Others.

To every authorized correspondent of the NEW YORK CLIPPER we have issued a CARD OF A LIGHT YELLOW COLOR, with an engraving of the CLIPPER building on one side, and on the other the name of the correspondent, city, etc., signed by the proprietor of the paper, with fac-simile stamp of the office and date of Sept. 1st, 1872. Affixed thereunto, each card running for six months. No person is authorized to use any other card, and all showmen are requested not to recognize or extend favors to any person unless he can produce a card like the above. During the past season many managers were defrauded and imposed upon by persons presenting an ordinary visiting card, bearing, in addition to their names, the words "Regularly authorized correspondent of the NEW YORK CLIPPER," and as an excuse for not doing that they had left their regular card at home. Our correspondents are requested never to use such cards, never to ask favors without showing their regular cards, and managers will save themselves from being imposed upon by fraudulent parties, at all times, the regular card. All cards of other colors previously issued are hereby revoked. Correspondents are requested to make their favors as brief as possible, as we have only a limited space for voluminous reports. Parties applying for the position of correspondent are respectfully requested to consider silence a negative.

MARIAN TAYLOR, burlesque artist and comedienne, can be addressed as per advertisement.

THE JENNIE LINGARD COMEDY COMPANY commenced a dramatic season at Fort Wayne, Ind., on Aug. 26th, opening in "Meg's Diversion." Miss Jenny Hight and Spencer Pritchard were the chief features. Business is reported good, and the prospects for an extended season are favorable

THE JENNIE MORTON, Idlewild, STAR DRAMATIC COMPANY is billed to perform at Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 2d, 3d and 4th; Harrisburg, 5th, 6th and 7th; Hagerstown, 9th, 10th and 11th; Chambersburg, 12th, 13th and 14th; Altoona, 16th, 17th and 18th; Hollidaysburgh, 19th, 20th and 21st; and Bellefonte, 23d, 24th and 25th. Jennie Morton is the feature, supported by W. A. Gregston and a company of twenty people. By reference to our advertising columns, it will be seen that a new combination who can sing, and a woman and musicians, are wanted.

EDITH GRANDE, soubrette, and Charlotte Stanley will travel during the coming season with the New York City Combination, under the management of Wm. Van Schoick.

BARTLEY T. CAMPBELL is prepared to negotiate with managers or others for the production of his comedy, "Peril," which was successfully played during the past season in Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. He is also ready to dispose of his dramas, "Through Fire," and "Fate; or, Brought to Judgment." For further particulars address as per card in another column.

VANTINI AND KIDDER'S Grand English Pantomime Troupe commence the season with a two weeks' engagement at the Opera House, Cincinnati, O., Sept. 9th, and managers desiring to engage the troupe after Oct. 7th can address C. W. Kidder, as per advertisement. A *co*lumbine and a first violinist are wanted.

AT THE METROPOLITAN THEATRE, San Francisco, Cal., "Humpty Dumpty" is drawing large audiences, wrote our correspondent on Aug. 23d, adding that:—"The performances now run smoothly, as successive repetitions and drilling by Tony Denier have worked the supernumeraries down to their duties. New tricks have been introduced, the old ones work with precision, and Denier, himself, having acquired the nerve which familiarity gives, is more effective than at first. If bismuth and tinted fleshings partially amuse but do not please the mind of the cynical play-goer, they are perennial delights to the young; therefore one is not unprepared to see the presence of Miss Ravel in the pantomime attendance. The Wednesday and Saturday matinees are the occasions of a great crush, and the abundance of color and the many bright faces form a picture charming even to the eye of a manager. The ballet is constructed and Mr. L. P. Ward will replace Mile. Buisiay as a harlequin.....The new sensational drama, 'The Psychoscope,' written by Messrs. Goodman and Daggett, of The Territorial Enterprise, was produced at Virginia City by the California Theatre Company on the 15th. As its success was equivocal, the authors vent a great deal of spite on the actors, the abuse of whom is regarded as being brought to a brilliant climax in characterizing them as 'dramatic butchers.' Now were the actors so berated unfamiliar to us the strictures might be thought justified, and the crown of martyrdom the authors pathetically claim the right to wear might rest in peace on their fevered brows; but as the alleged dramatic butchers are players of talent from whom intelligent portrayals may always be expected, being artists of no less reputation than John McCullough, Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer, Owen Marlowe, J. C. Williamson, Mrs. Judah, Mrs. Bates, Minnie Walton and Helen Tracy, the assurance of attributing the failure of the play to them is really amusing. Other papers published at Virginia City notice the animus of the authors, and quietly insinuate that what little favor the play did receive was owing entirely to the art of the actors, and in effect state that 'The Psychoscope' is a whirl of commonplace, spiced up with pictures of assignation house life. Indeed, so prurient suggestive were a portion of the dialogue and situations, that the actresses at first refused to study their parts, and were induced to do only upon a decided toning down of the obnoxious scenes. This was what jaundiced the authors, in connection also with the regarded uncalled for condensation of the dialogue to facilitate the action. But we are nothing if not charitable, and as 'The Psychoscope' is the first dramatic effort of Messrs. Goodman and Daggett, the exhibition of egotistical indignation respecting the alleged weak illustration of the powerful scenes written by the best of English (vide Goodman and Daggett's own opinion modestly published), may be pardoned as the green folly of inexperienced minds. The company closed there on the 19th, after a successful season of four weeks. At the last performance Mrs. Bates was presented with a gold locket and chain, and Minnie Walton received an elegant set of jewelry, besides having a brick thrown at her on the stage. The company were to visit Carson and Elko before returning to San Francisco.....Joe Murphy will appear at Virginia City at an early date.....Miss Ada Gray, supported by the Metropolitan Theatre company, opened at San Jose to large business on the 19th, in 'Article 47.'.....Matilda Heron, it seems, has arrived at no compromise with the estate of Harry Byrne's will, and her claim upon the estate will be hotly contested. She now asks for an allowance of $200 a month for herself and child from the date of Byrne's death. The executor will endeavor to prove she was divorced before marrying Stoepel.....The California Theatre will not be ready much before the first of October. The largest possible force of men are employed to push the work forward to an early completion."

THE HOLLIDAY STREET THEATRE, Baltimore, Md., was opened for the regular season on Aug. 26th. Our correspondent, writing on Aug. 30th, says:—"The interior has been re-painted and re-decorated to some extent, and a new drop curtain, painted so as to represent the folds of hanging drapery, added. 'Old Drury,' despite its shrunken proportions, still maintains its honors and primatic recollections, looks by no means the miserable place that it really is; on the contrary, it is as neat, cosy and fresh looking as any modern temple of the drama in the country. The following gentlemen are the officers of the house:—John T. Ford, proprietor and manager; James R. Ford, treasurer and business manager; Frank L. Keller, stage manager; Chas. H. Getz, scenic artist; Wm. May, ticket agent and advertiser; J. A. Rosenberger, leader of orchestra; Basil Moxley, box doorkeeper, and Christopher Gardiner, machinist. A fine audience assembled on the opening night, business remaining quite good up to date. The initial representation consisted of the spectacular burlesque extravaganza, 'The Field of the Cloth of Gold,' re-written so as to suit local purposes, and introducing a multitude of telling hits at the fragrant Basin, the city council, the Third National Bank robbery, the Sage of Chappaqua, etc. The play was elaborately mounted, with handsome costumes and properties, numerous auxiliaries and good scenery, the representations of the quay (the Baltimore Basin) and the Field of the Cloth of Gold being especially fine. The Rand Sisters, Olivia and Rosa, as Earl Darnley and Lady Constance de Gray respectively, met with a warm reception, they being old favorites here. Both were magnificently costumed, their acting was pleasing, and they sang a number of charming solos and duets. Mr. Geo. Howard, the favorite comedian of this establishment, was likewise vociferously greeted; his conception of Francis II was extremely humorous. Mr. J. K. Fortesque was a most gigantic Queen Catherine, and met with a proportionately big welcome. Mr. W. H. Burton impersonated bluff King Hal in a creditable manner. The balance of the cast was acceptably filled by the Misses Emma Stockman, Orton, Forrest, Kate Kincade, and Messrs. P. Wise, J. B. Kilbourne, J. L. Gallagher, H. C. Smith, M. Heimer and H. Pearson. A couple of delightful ballet divertissements were presented, the principal participants being the lovely and graceful premiere, Mlle. Lusuardi, the Holt Sisters, the Francisco Sisters, Mlle. Vincent and Miss Emma Miles. The most attractive features of the entire programme, however, were the Teutonic specialties of Messrs. Baker and Farron, who are among the best in their line of business. Their songs and dances are immense, and between these are sandwiched bits of comic acting of the most delicious nature. Finally comes Mr. Myers, a clever character change artist, who met with a fair share of applause. 'The Field of the Cloth of Gold' will probably hold the boards for another week.....The Grand Opera House will be re-opened Sept. 9th.....Messrs. W. H. Langdon and Phil. M. Allison, two popular young actors of this city, left this week for Cincinnati, O., where they begin an engagement at the new Opera House."

CHARLES R. THORNE, JR., may possibly play a few star engagements during the coming season, but declines becoming a member of any stock company.

MANAGERS desiring to secure John Jack and Annie Firmin for the production of "John Garth," are referred to their agents, Canning & Lowell, for vacant dates.

JAS. F. CROSSEN, leading man, advertises that he can be engaged.

HARRY B. BELL, juvenile, whose address find elsewhere, can be engaged for the season of 1872 and '73.

FROM CINCINNATI, O., our correspondent writes on the 30th ult.:—"Wood's Theatre will open the ball for the fall and winter on Monday, Sept. 2d, followed by Pike's and the National on the 9th. The opening week will consist of Jefferson's version of 'Rip Van Winkle,' with Johnny Allen, Little Mac and Alice Henderson, for stellar attractions, followed by the 'Black Crook' on the 9th. The following is the company engaged for the theatre:—Mrs. B. Macauley, Mary Davenport, Nellie McHenry, Augusta Chambers, Carrie Jamison, Florence Vincent, Mary Montello, Kitz Moore, Mary Howard, B. Macauley, D. E. Ralton, W. R. Otis, John Marble, Fred. Hight, H. C. Barton, Robert Grahame, W. S. Young, F. Vickers, H. Robbins, H. E. Meben, E. F. Russell, A. A. Armstrong, M. J. Moriarty, C. Waite and H. Hanson. John R. Rogers remains treasurer.....Gardner will open with Robert McWade in 'Rip Van Winkle,' at Pike's Opera House, on the 9th.....E. D. Davies will run a vaudeville theatre at the National.....Work on John Robinson's theatre is progressing rapidly, the building being above ground. John Owens expects to inaugurate the theatre early in November, but it can hardly be completed by that time.

AT COL. WOOD'S MUSEUM, Philadelphia, the dramatic portion of the entertainment presented last week included the comedy of "The Pride of the Market," the drama of "The Postilion of Bonville," and the farce of "The Foundling." Susan Galton made her first appearance at this establishment on the 26th ult., as Marion Girade, in "The Pride of the Market," and produced a decidedly favorable impression by her vivacious acting and excellent singing. "The Postilion of Bonville" gave most of the company an opportunity to display their ability, Frank Evans as Eustache Baudin, and Wm. Davidge, Jr., duced for three or four nights, with 'The Palace of Truth' following for the remainder of the week, after which comes Jenny Thompson.....De Haas' Opera House, during the vacation, undergoes some minor changes, the most desirable of which has been the abolition of the pit. The ground entrance, leading to the parquet, has been nicely flagged with marble; the old wooden railing, surrounding the spot allotted to the orchestra, has been displaced by one of iron, of a fancy pattern. Lillie Eldridge will be the opening star, with the following stock company:—Wm. Harris, stage manager and leading; H. A. Hills, juvenile; Chas. Krone, heavy; Will J. Wiggins, comedy; G. W. Mitchell, old men; J. C. Nelson, walking gents; Geo. Lascelles, 2d old men; Ed. Mackway, 2d comedy; W. Slocum, 2d heavy; utility, Chaflin, Boyd, McKee, Jones and Scott; prompter, Chas. Keller; leading lady, Laura Linden; Sallie Partington, chambermaids, Miss Boniface having engaged elsewhere; Mrs. F. Edstrom, old women; Miss Kitty Hinds, 2d old women; utility, the Misses Kelly, Clarke, McHenry and Sheppard. 'Mignon' will be the initial performance, which will be followed by 'Alma.'.....The new opera house on Market street, upon which the finishing touches are being given, will be opened to-morrow night for the inspection and comment of the press, and a few invited friends. The house is to be opened on Sept. 2d, for the regular season, with the Abbotts-Kirby troupe.

DOMINICK MURRAY is to commence an engagement at Montreal, C. E., Sept. 2d.

MRS. W. A. CHAPMAN, first old woman, late of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, is prepared to accept an engagement, and can be addressed as per advertisement.

MANAGERS desiring to secure Mrs. Emma Waller for the production of a new dramatic sensation, "Blanched; or, the Lightning Born," in which she will be supported by Andrew Redifer, after Nov. 4th, are referred to her card in another column.

MISS AUGUSTA DARGON commenced a six nights' engagement at the Academy of Music, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 26th. Our correspondent, writing on August 30th, says: "She was cordially received by her many friends gained while playing at Hooley's Opera House previous to the fire. It was her intention to produce her new play entitled 'Betrayed,' but as it was not fully prepared she somewhat reluctantly appeared in Mrs. M. L. Johnstone's version of 'Article 47.' This version is very much like Mr. Schonberg's, and between the two there is but little choice. Mrs. Johnstone omits the trial scene in the first act. Judging from the meagre attendance at this house, as well as at McVicker's, 'Article 47' is not a success. Though Miss Dargon plays the character of Cora for the first time, her conception of the part would indicate that she has given it a long and careful study. Throughout the entire play she displays all the power, intensity and pathos that the role requires, and her poses and facial expression are grand, while her costuming is matchless. Mr. J. W. Blaisdell appeared for the first time in this theatre, and gave a very careful and correct impersonation of George Duhamel. His reception upon his appearance was little short of an ovation. So great was the applause, that it was several minutes ere he could open his mouth to utter a line. Mr. Chas. R. Wilson—also an old favorite—received marked attention as he put in an appearance. He likewise gave a praiseworthy rendition of Doctor Combes. Mr. E. T. Burt as De Mezin, J. C. Padgett as Mazilier, F. G. Maynard as De Rivers, Ed. Marble as Potain and Mrs. J. S. Carhart as Madame Duhamel, were each respectively good. For Miss Dargon's benefit, this evening, 'Guy Mannering,' 'Robert Macaire' and recitation of 'Sheridan's Ride' by Miss Dargon will constitute the bill. Oliver Doud Byron will produce his new play of 'Ben McCulloch' on Sept. 2d. His engagement is for two weeks. The theatre has undergone a thorough renovation, newly decorated, re-painted, both inside and out, and now presents a neat and tasteful appearance. The regular fall and winter season commences on Sept. 4th.....At Mowrey's Theatre, Schonberg's version of 'Article 47' is in its second week, but is meeting with poor encouragement from the public. It is mounted in elegant taste, the most prominent scenes being really beautiful, and the costuming on the part of the ladies is rich and costly. The acting of the principal characters is generally good. Mrs. Octavia Allen's assumption of Cora is as fine and meritorious a piece of acting as one could desire. Miss Phosa McAllister displays considerable dramatic ability in the short part of Marcelle. Mr. Jas. O'Neil is quiet and thoroughly pleasing as Geo. Duhamel. M. Mazelier is enacted as well as the character will admit of by W. H. Power. M. Lanagan is highly satisfactory as Mons. de Rives. The minor characters are alike creditably sustained and the entire company work smoothly together. 'Saratoga' is in active rehearsal and will, probably, supplant the present piece on the 2d.....Messrs. Langdon, Barker and Genese will play Harry Linden at Quincy, Ill., the coming week, supported by J. H. Fitzpatrick, G. A. Pembroke, W. H. Rodman, Belwil Ryan, H. Balleny, H. Jordan, Jr., Geo. Hodson, the Misses Mamie Russell, Nellie Drury, Stevens and Violet Campbell.....Barker and Genese will play Oliver Doud Byron in Milwaukee, Wis., one week, commencing Sept. 16th.....The Boston Comedy Company, managed by Miss Bell Remick, opens in Aurora Sept. 9th for a few nights.....Mr. Edwin Browne has returned from England."

Musical.

"HORACE GREELEY'S MARCH" is among the latest musical publications by Horace Waters, New York. The same house has issued "When the Light Waves Rippling Play," by Arthur Mathison and J. R. Thomas.

THE GERMAN TROUPE of Levitti's Swiss Bell Ringers are traveling in northern and eastern Ohio. Troupe No. 3, with Prof. G. W. Ryder and lady in their lightning changes, is billed for Poland, O., Sept. 2d; Canfield, 3d; Washingtonville, 4th; Leonia, 5th; New Lisbon, 6th; Salem, 7th, and Wellsville, 8th.

A TROUPE OF ASSOCIATED ARTISTS made their first appearance in Halifax, N. S., on Aug. 26th, in "Lucrezia Borgia," in which M'me Corani is reported to have sung and acted in the role of Lucrezia superbly, and M'lle Lami and Signors Bassei and Reina are highly eulogized. In fact, judging from the press notices, the Haligonians appear to have gone into ecstacies, saying that the troupe have treated them to Italian opera in a way hitherto unequaled in Halifax.

CONCERT HALL, Philadelphia, during the summer, has been frescoed, painted and thoroughly renovated, and will be re-opened on the evening of the 5th inst, on which occasion Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard, and Messrs. Pierre Bernard, Frank Bilder, and H. Stewardson will sing in a popular concert.

J. NICK GOODALL, pianist, violinist, &c., will give a benefit concert at the Maverick House, East Boston, Mass., on Sept. 5th, assisted by Prof. J. W. Turner, pianist, and Capt. Wilkins, violinist. He also advertises that he can be engaged.

A LEADER OF ORCHESTRA and a pianist, who can play brass, are wanted for Fielding's Opera House, Toledo, O. Address Geo. Cole, as per card elsewhere.

FRED. BAKER, leader of orchestra, who can be addressed as per advertisement, wants an engagement.

W. H. BROCKWAY'S last composition is entitled "Twilight in the Park," dedicated to Dan. Dryant, and published by C. H. Ditson & Co., No. 711 Broadway.

THE ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS at Pacific Hall, San Francisco, Cal., have proven a financial failure. The expenses were $500 for each concert, and four concerts were sufficient to sink about $800. A benefit on the 31st ult., was tendered Oscar Weill, when the attendance was of the best quality but fair only in numbers. Exquisite music was played from Beethoven, Schuman, Schubert, Strauss, etc., and a novelty was brought forward in Mr. Fred. Lyster's new ode, "Over Hill, over Dale," sung by Mr. Vernon Lincoln. The music is wedded to the spirit of the theme, and the poem is well known for a pathetic and elegant composition. The ode, as sung by Mr. Lincoln, was repeated in response to general applause.

Variety Halls.

VARIETY NEWS from Cincinnati, up to the 30th ult., is furnished by our correspondent as follows:—"At the Pacific Garden the new appearances this week have been T. Murray, Frank Mann, Master Willie Ashton. Murray is a good character vocalist, and is improved in style and costume since his visit here last winter. Frank Lum is also a character vocalist, as well as Ethiopian comedian. Ashton is a boy of about twelve years, a neat tumbler and gymnast. Eddie and Charles Gregorie's performances on the horizontal bar and in carpet gymnastics, are fine, and take well. Beside these, each gymnastic corps contains two amateurs, who do not give their names. The Ethiops, beside Lum, are Tommy Dayton, Lew Cavanac and Johnny Smith, and the vocalists are Mollie Somers and Julia Barton, the latter a balladist, and the former semi-comic and Dutch singer. Biz continues quite good.....At the Olympic, Jim Mills, trapeze and gymnastic performer, and Ethiopian comedian, also put in an appearance this week, and has met with success. Sandy Dolan and Frank Lum have closed. Nellie Seymour, 'change' vocalist, is quite a favorite. The balance of the company embrace Mollie Boyd, Mollie St. Martins, Minnie Warner, Harry Watkinson, Prof. Lawrence, Charley La Porte and Prof. Clark. The Lawrence statues, which are changed each week, continue a leading feature. Mr. Lum manages this week at the Race Street Varieties have been the closing of the Misses Lon Florence and Chrissie Morrell, the latter going to Wild's, at Cleveland, and the former with a party to the fairs; and the engagement of Nellie Halloway, a pleasing semi-comic vocalist. The witching Weaver and mirthful Morton make things uproarious for the entire company. Billy Rice serves as comic examiner in the middle. Geo. Davenport, Jim Finley, Maud Le Moine, la belle Helene, and Sadie Lloyd remain. Biz quite fair.....Dan Conner, a well known comedian, brother to 'Cincinnatus,' is lying hopelessly ill of consumption, at his home in Xenia, Ohio.....E. D. Davies, the ventriloquist, has leased the National, and opened for the season, and combines ventriloquism with that of a first-class variety theatre, September 9th.....Emma Barrett, vocalist and dancer, and Sandy Dolan, comedian, have joined the company at the Sycamore street varieties."

AT THE VARIETIES THEATRE, Pittsburgh, Pa., John T. Kelly, Willie Gaylord and Mollie Fontainbleau, were the new people on the 26th. "Kelly," says our correspondent, "is a fair Irish vocalist and comedian, but at times his delineations are overdone, but his dancing is encored nightly. As a contortionist, Gaylord is a thorough artist, his performances being accomplished with an ease and grace that render them pleasing to the most fastidious. Mr. J. W. Blaisdell appeared for the first time in this theatre, and gave a very careful and correct impersonation of George Duhamel. His reception upon his appearance was little short of an ovation. So great was the applause, that it was several minutes ere he could open his mouth to utter a line. Mr. Chas. R. Wilson—also an old favorite—received marked attention as he put in an appearance. AT THE HOWARD ATHENÆUM, Boston, Mass., a strong company amused the audience last week, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, Miss Cerito, Miss Patti Rosa, the Rigl Sisters, Oaffy Gooft, Geo. W. Thompson, Eugene and Unsworth, Gus Williams, Romeill Family, and others.

THE REGULAR FALL and winter season at Mortimer's Varieties, Philadelphia, commenced on the 26th ult., and the auditorium on this occasion was crammed in every part, and that too by an audience that evinced the most lively satisfaction at the entertainment provided. The programme commenced with the sketch of "Dutch Justice," in which George S. Knight was very happy in his comic definition of the quality set forth in the title; Miss Amy De Brent, in serio-comic vocalism; songs and dances by Tommy and Willie Daly, and by Miss Kate Farren; feats of magic by Prof. Rickie; Miss Jennie Maskell and Valentine Love in their protean changes; Eph Horn, jr., in banjo solos, and the sensational drama of "Buffalo Bill" lent an agreeable variety to a programme, the chief features of which, however, were the sensational songs of Viola Clifton, the Dutch eccentricities and specialties of George S. Knight, who appeared to great advantage, and the interludes of "Home Again" and "Bad Whiskey," which serve to display the merits as comedians of Harry Kernell and Dan Gutchyle, the former being especially noted for his comic talent. Business was excellent during the week. Miss Amy De Brent, Eph Horn, jr., and George S. Knight closed on the 31st ult. Harry Brown, comic vocalist, Jule Keen, Dutch comedian, and Lizzie La Grange, serio-comic vocalist, make their appearance on the 2d inst.

HARRY W. WILLIAMS, the stage manager of Gardner and Trimble's Variety Theatre, Pittsburgh, visited Philadelphia on the 1st inst., to preside over the Philadelphia Lodge of Elks, which held its first meeting since the summer recess on that date.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME was provided last week at the Garden Music Hall, Third street and Girard avenue, Philadelphia. Billy Wright, Charles Devere, Mlle. Salina, Mel Kurtz and others appeared in their specialties, and the large attendance evinced the public appreciation of the efforts of the management to make this a permanent place of amusement for that section of the city.

FIVE NEW FACES appeared on the boards of the Detroit, Mich., Theatre Comique on Aug. 26th. Gus Peters and Mlle. Anzetta exhibited considerable talent in their double Dutch song and dances, and won favor at once; Harry Cauland, the musical moke, introduced a few original ideas in his acts. If he were to tune his musical goblets it would please much better. Mons. Revini and Zoe Zeonetti gave a double trapeze act, which calls for no especial remark. Kate Fisher closes the programme with "Mazeppa," which has drawn fine houses so far. On the 29th, she produced "The Fenian Spy," on her comeback, for her benefit, and continues on the balance of the week. Billy Hart, Sadie Mason and Hannah Birch rendered good support to Miss Fisher, and kept the audience in good humor by their drolleries. Little Josie and J. E. Carton close on the 31st, going to Toledo, O. Blanche Selwyn opens the 2d of Sept. So reported our correspondent on Aug. 30th.

AT FIELDING'S OPERA HOUSE, Toledo, O., the only new appearance of the past week was Miss Eva Buckner, vocalist. John Carle, banjoist and comedian, made a hit; Miss Lena Clark, vocalist, rendered herself quite popular during her stay; Miss Maggie Fielding sang a number of new songs, which were well received; Geo. Wilson gave a very fair song and dance, and, with Carle, performed a double act, called "Old Grimes and Bobby Green," which was quite good. Miss Lena Clark and John and Maggie Fielding closed last week, the two latter going to Cleveland, where they open at the Rink Sept. 9th, thence to Detroit, Mich., commencing a two weeks' engagement on the 23d. J. E. Carlton and Little Josie are underlined for an appearance on Sept. 2d.

J. C. MURPHY, bone soloist and Ethiopian comedian, commenced an engagement at the Athenæum, Keokuk, Iowa, Aug. 27th. The company during the past week was as follows:—Charles Mulgro, Ethiopian comedian; Ella Warner, vocalist and banjoist; Little Mary, song and dance; Eliza Ridgway, balladist; Elfie Rance, dancer; Albert S. Casper, burlesque actor; Robert Frayne, Hindoo juggler; Otto Bonnell, tumblieronicon performer; J. S. Wulff, violinist, and Charles Kelly, general performer. WASH. NORTON, by permission of Dan Bryant, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Globe Theatre, Chicago, Ill., commencing Sept. 2d.

WILL. C. BURTON and Minnie Rainforth, at present performing at the Varieties Theatre, Scranton, Pa., where they can be addressed, will be at liberty to accept engagements after Sept. 14th, to appear in their zouave drill, sensational dramas and burlesques.

FLEMING FRAYNE, Clara Butler and the Little Frankie Frayne, now playing at Shelby's Comique, Buffalo, N. Y., can be engaged through Dan Shelby. See advertisement.

MISS CAROLINE SCHROTTER, dancer, was married on Aug. 27th to MR. VICTOR KELLY.

AT THE NEW HAVEN, CONN., OPERA HOUSE, the following company appeared during the past week:—Agnes Sutherland, Scotch vocalist; Annie Elmore, Laura Graham, Kitty Sharpe, Harry Thorne, Hugky Haggerty, the Hawley brothers, Brown and Hunter, Knell Burgess, and Frank Dillon, stage manager.

THE VENTINI pantomimic and gymnastic troupe, including Mlle. Zulella, gymnast; Mons. Ventini and E. H. Trainer, gymnasts and hat spinners, and Andy Morris, clown and pantomimist, commence an engagement at Wild's Opera House, Cleveland, O., Sept. 2d, and go thence to Trimble's Opera House, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FRED CANNON, comic vocalist, burlesque lecturer, &c., whose address find elsewhere, wants engagements.

WATKIN MORGAN, Dutch, Irish and Ethiopian specialist, can be addressed as per advertisement.

JOHNNY RANDALL, song and dance artist, advertises that he will be at liberty after Sept. 14th.

FIRST CLASS ATTRACTIONS are wanted for Mortimer's Varieties, Philadelphia, Pa. Address as per card in another column.

NILES & EVANS, character duetists, are at present performing at Blanchett's Coliseum, Rochester, N. Y., where they can be addressed until Sept. 16th.

THE ST. FELIX PARISIENNE BALLET TROUPE, at present performing at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Mass., where, Mons. De St. Felix states, they are wrongfully advertised as the Saxon Infant Ballet Troupe, have vacant dates in September, and can be engaged for the season, after Oct. 7th, through their agent, Col. T. A. Brown.

TALENT is wanted for the National Theatre, Cincinnati, O. See advertisement.

SIDNEY FRANKS, comic vocalist and mimic, commences an engagement at the Opera House, Cleveland, O., on Sept. 2d, where he can be addressed by managers desiring to engage him after Oct. 7th.

AGNES SUTHERLAND, serio-comic vocalist, at present performing at the New Haven, Conn., Opera House, where she can be addressed, commences an engagement in Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 23d.

GOODYEAR & WHITING advertise for a bass vocalist who can do middle business, a balladist, and a tenor balladist and comedian.

P. H. SEAMON, who can be addressed as per advertisement, can be engaged for his Peter Hontz Family and talking heads business.

THE ATHENÆUM THEATRE, Keokuk, Iowa, J. S. Wulff, lessee and manager, was opened for the season on Aug. 26th, and performers of ability are advertised for.

A CORNET PLAYER, who understands the variety business, is wanted for Smith's Opera House, Ann Saginaw, Mich. See advertisement.

HARRY HOSMER, fancy dancer, burlesque prima donna and vocalist, who can be addressed care of this office, wants an engagement.

A LADY VOCALIST and pianist, and a gentleman comic and sentimental vocalist want engagements. Address Reyner, as per card elsewhere.

FOYE & LEE request, through an advertisement, that the artists engaged for their combination will meet at the Music Hall, Quebec, Canada, on Sept. 12th.

FIRST CLASS PERFORMERS desiring engagements are requested to address the manager of Trimble's Variety Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa. For further particulars see cards in another column.

ANNIE ADAMS, serio-comic vocalist, at present at Alms' American theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., is favorably noticed by the press of that city, as will be seen by extracts in another column.

THE FRONT STREET THEATRE COMIQUE Baltimore, Md., opened August 26th, for the season of 1872-'73, under the most favorable auspices, the house being packed and the bill of attractions powerful, wrote our correspondent on August 30th, adding that:—"The interior of the theatre has been renovated to some extent, the scenery has been retouched, and the auditorium well cleaned and re-painted. The following are the officers of the house:—Wm. H. Sinn, lessee and manager; Geo. R. Edeson, business and stage manager; Chas. Reinhardt, musical director; Mons. A. Grossi, maitre de ballet, and Frank Smith, chief doorkeeper. At the termination of the overture, Little Alberta, a child of some ten summers, indulged in a clog dance and other dances, bounding from a barrel, to placed upon her back, doing all with commendable cleverness. Cincinnatus, in his Ethiopian songs and dances, produced undisguised gratification. Miss Rosa Lee, a lady of comely exterior and dignified mien, in her vocalisms, classic and serio-comic, manifested a rich, well-trained voice. John Pendy, character changist, rendered a song descriptive of the wake-up of a jolly old man, then, in a few seconds after his exit, re-appeared, blacked up, and took a trick as a nigger song and dancist. Miss Dora Dawron, a double voiced singer, met with favor. One of the Egyptian jugglers then performed some truly astonishing feats of dexterity and fugglery. Later in the evening both of them frisked about in a lively acrobatic way. The next sort of way, Master Sandy and Miss Ella Saunders danced a splendid statue clog, which met with vociferous applause. Miss Lillie Hall, a dashing young lady, magnificently costumed, presented some good changes and finely rendered songs. A picturesque ballet divertissement, termed 'The Elves of the Gold Mines,' served to introduce Mlle. Josephine de Mona, premiere danseuse; Mlle. Malvina, premiere; Mlle. Alexandrina, Miss Lizzie Dark and Mlle. Leontine, secundos, and the Misses Hannah Granzer, Addie Herr, Olivia Nichols, Fanny Cohen, Rosina Thomas, Annie St. Clair, Sophia Johnson and Mollie Johnson, coryphees. Subsequently another ballet called 'The Two Faced Girls,' was presented. Sam Devere's appearance was the signal for deafening and long continued applause. His negro effusions, with banjo obligato, were really side splitting. Afterwards he presented his Dutch specialties, which met with uproarious approbation. Mr. C. Reinhburn, London comique, whose ne plus ultra character songs and changes are too well known to need special comment here, was favorably received. The programme wound up with an extravaganza entitled 'The Fairy Gift,' characters taken by G. R. Edeson, S. K. Chester, Sam Devere, E. C. Walston, W. H. Bryan, R. Jones, Boney Hodges, Lillie Hall, Rosa Lee and Hannah Granger. Up to present writing the attendance has been excellent. Matinees are given on Tuesdays and Saturdays. On Wednesday and Friday nights ladies are admitted. Mr. Milburn closes Saturday, opening at the new Washington, D. C., Theatre Comique on Sept. 2d.....At the Baltimore Opera House the Gorenzo Sisters, Marie and Amelia, were the other new arrivals Aug. 26th. They are very artistic dancuses, and invariably meet with encores. The bill terminated with a laughable serio-comic drama, entitled 'Baltimore Upside Down,' written by Mr. W. J. Thompson. Business has been fair. Dick Parker, Otto Burbank, Letha Herman, Geo. Herman, Jessie Howard and Josie Ashton close Saturday and go to Washington, D. C. W. J. Thompson, Toney Harvey, Kate Barrown and Julia May are announced to open on Sept. 2d.....At the Odeon Varieties business has remained good. The new faces last Monday were Charley Fox, Miss Ida Fox and Miss Lizzie Johnson. Charley Fox is an excellent Teutonic and negro comedian, Ida Fox a clever danseuse, and Lizzie Johnson a very youthful and promising song and dance miss. No departures this week, nor additions next."

AT SMITH'S Opera House, East Saginaw, Mich., Annie Williams, Maggie McGuire, Joe Mairs and Cal Mandeville, closed on Aug. 31st. On September 2d, Willie O'Levis, Maggie Loraine, Kittie Whitland, Geo. W. King and James Murtz, open; the last two are talented double trapeze performers. Frank Bennett opened on the 26th to a good audience. On Monday, Sept. 9th, Zoe and Stevens are underlined to appear. Miss Annie Dubois, Miss Minnie Gray, Miss Lon, Johnny Morton, Fernando Peary and Charles O. White, comprise the remainder of the company.

LAWRENCE BARRETT appeared at the Brooklyn Academy on Aug. 30th to a rather slimly attended house, the play being "Julius Cæsar," with Barrett as Cassius, Robinson as Brutus, and Shewell as Mark Antony.

THE CLEVELAND, O., OPERA HOUSE, under the management of Frank Wild, opens Monday, Sept. 2d. The house, formerly Brainard's Hall, has been neatly and appropriately fitted up with new scenery, dressing rooms, etc. The entire auditorium has been re-arranged and newly decorated in a tasty manner. The company and attaches are as follows:—Frank Wild, lessee and manager; J. J. Schwind, treasurer; James B. Edwards, stage manager; Prof. Loebman, musical director; Sidney Franks, Quilter and Goldrick, Alfred McDonell, H. W. Eagan, R. V. Ferguson, Billy Diamond, Harry Bernard, Miss Ida Foy, Miss Jennie Eagan, Miss Bertha Foy, Miss Josie Farran, Jenny Wilmore, Zoe Gayton, Ada Freeman, Miss Chrissie Morrell, the Lillian Sisters and the Ventini Troupe—Mons. Ventini, Mlle. Zulella, E. H. Trainer and Andy Mossin—Mr. James Dolan, machinist, and J. Koetz, property maker. On Monday, Sept. 9th, Mr. G. W. Jester, the "Man with the Talking Hand," will make his first appearance in this city.....Montpelier's Varieties is flourishing. The following new people put in appearances on Aug. 26th:—Billy Gray, Frank Bell, Peasley and Hughes, and Emma Whiting. The wardrobe of Peasley and Hughes did not arrive in time for the first night, and they were obliged to adopt some old soldier suits and appear in a double "Captain with the Wooden Hand," which fell flat and hung heavily on their hands. However, on the second evening they made a decided hit in a neat and artistic double song and dance. Frank Bell gives comical illustrations of a public speaker. Miss Emma Whiting sang "Katy Avourneen" creditably and responded to several encores. The Georgia Sisters are nightly gaining ground in their specialties, and Miss Daisy Deserey, Mlle. Olivia opens in East Saginaw, Mich., on Sept. 2d, for four weeks. Miss Kitty Le Roy will open with Tony Pastor, New York, Sept. 16th; reported our correspondent on Aug. 30th.

SHELBY'S COMIQUE, Buffalo, N. Y., has been packed each night of the past week, all the aisles being filled with chairs and stools. The arrivals on August 26th were Mlle. Celeste and Mrs. C. E. Mathews, trapezists; also Miss Caddie Wright, protean actress. The performance opened with the farce of "In and Out of Place," in which Miss Wright assumed four characters, appearing to advantage in each. In the absence of a regular danseuse Miss Wright was prevailed upon to execute later in the evening a sailor's hornpipe, which she did quite creditably, though not at all in her line. The olio terminated with the trapeze performances of Mlle. Celeste and Mr. Mathews, which were given with great skill and daring, entitling them to rank as first class artists. The Foy sisters had a rousing benefit on the 30th, every available inch of space being filled. Hosts of volunteers appeared, and everything passed off pleasantly. They close to-night. Ed. Murphy, Billy Wright, Geo. Wilson and Alfred Sarony, Jennie and Antoinette Palmer, and James Roome will open. A few evenings since Manager Shelby's orchestra determined upon giving that gentleman a surprise, and after the performance proceeded to his residence and favored him with a serenade. They were duly invited in, refreshments provided, and a pleasant time indulged in. As a slight indication of the high estimation in which Mr. Shelby is held by his employees. So says our correspondent under date of August 31st.

PROF. ED. MORELY, in his act of "The Talking Hand;" Mollie Macy, banjoist; Mlle. Cecelle, song and dance lady, and Jimmy Gilroy, Dutch comedian, opened at the Walnut Street Theatre, Kansas City, Mo., on Aug. 26th. Morely's act is very clever, and well received; Jimmy Gilroy's Dutch song and dance is immense, and the other two are very good. Maud De Lisle was announced for the 26th, but was prevented from appearing by severe sickness. The charming jig dancer, Clara Burton, is as popular as ever. Manager Carroll, with a variety company, goes to Quincy, Ill., Sept. 1st, for one week. He has withdrawn from the Atanno Varieties at Wichita, Kansas, as the attendance there visibly improved since the addition of Prof. J. E. Hassett as leader of the orchestra. The following people constitute the rest of the company:—Sig. Constantine, pantomimist; Mlle. Irma, dancuse; Jaques Kruger, leading man; Jim Gaynor, banjoist; General Grant, Jr.; Mlle. Evaline, dancuse; J. F. Barlow, song and dance; Miss Emmazetta, and the La Monte Brothers in a trapeze act.....Gilfoil and Rouke, lately with Barnum's show, are in that city enjoying a season of rest. Billy De Vere, Maud Le Moine, Mattie O'Neil and Lizzie Shelton are underlined. Business excellent.

THE BROOKLYN OLYMPIC had good business last week with Le Fort and Annie Hindle as stars. This week Kate Raymond is to appear in "The French Spy."

THE YOKES FAMILY drew a fashionable and crowded house at the Brooklyn Academy on Aug. 31st in their specialty of "Scenes in the Kitchen." The burlesque was preceded by the farce of "Mr. and Mrs. White," in which E. Lamb and Marie Bates appeared.

THE OPENING OF THE GLOBE THEATRE, Chicago, as a vaudeville and variety place of amusement by the Messrs. Wood and Sinn, the past week, will prove a most satisfactory undertaking, if the attendance thus far is any criterion. The houses have been very large—in fact, remarkably so, for the weather to have been so favored with. W. E. Sinn will have the sole direction of amusements, and will be assisted by the genial R. L. Marsh, as business manager and treasurer; Frank H. Nelson, stage manager; A. E. Voos, musical director, and David Costa, maitre de ballet. Family matinees are to be given every Wednesday and Saturday. With few exceptions the present company will bear calling out a second week's bill consists of "Dutch Justice, with D. L. Morris as the inimitable Hans Von Steizenheim, in which he keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Maggie Gray, in a very neatly executed song and dance; the French Twin Sisters in a Scotch strathspey; the Leslie brothers, in gymnastic feats; a ballet called "The Grotto Nymphs," led off by Miss Bertie Remmelsberg, a graceful and accomplished danseuse, assisted by David Costa, Sophie Remmelsberg, Susie Summerfield, and a bevy of fine looking, well drilled young ladies; Dolly Warren, in a Dolly Varden song, fairly rendered; Martha Wren and Jas. Collins, in an act styled "Divorce," capitally done, especially Mr. Collins' portion; Boby Newcomb, for style and grace, second only to Billy Emerson in song and dance. This gentleman has created a small furore here, and well deserves the hearty encores he nightly receives. The piquant and charming little Ella Chapman next appears in a double song and dance with Maggie Gray, which she executed in a style of excellence. Carrie Avery next appeared in a topical song, which has not proved to be a favorite singer. The performance concluded with the fairy extravaganza, entitled "A Fairy Revel," with Ella Chapman, Harry Quion, Harry Richmond and others, in the cast. Bobby Newcomb and D. L. Morris close on the 31st, and open with Fred. Alms, at Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2d. The Brothers Lee close this week, going, we believe, to New York. Frank Gibbons and the La Verde Children appear on the 2d.....Chas. E. Dobson is in the city, organizing a traveling variety troupe. So reports our correspondent under date of Aug. 30th.

AT THE METROPOLITAN THEATRE, St. Joseph, Mo., Dave Williams, banjoist, opened Aug. 26th; also Jim Hays, Dutch and Ethiopian delineator, and Agnes Delmar, Williams' banjo solo receives numerous encores. Hays takes very well, being an old favorite. The local sketch, "A Glance at St. Joe," was produced on the 26th, introducing the Parisian Can-can, of which the public seem never to tire. The company is Johnny Pierce, Harry Hart, Dave Williams, Jim Hays, Ainsley and Griffith, Hanson and Thompson, Joe Purdy, Eloche Forrester, Nellie Edwards, Gussie Lamereaux, May De Forrest, Sue Willis, Claire Sisters (three) and Agnes Delmar. Business good, considering the very warm weather. J. H. Emerson, lively moke, opens Sept. 2d, and Mafft and Jeffreys, gymnasts, about the 10th.

CHARLES ADAMS was the only new attraction at the Colliseum, Rochester, N. Y., during the past week. He appeared in his Dutch specialties, which were encored.

THE RESURRECTION of the old Washington, D. C., Theatre, and its transformation into the Theatre Comique, has, at last, been completed, and it will open its doors to the public on Sept. 2d, under the management of L. R. Walker & Co. A brief description of the many improvements have been effected in this time honored temple of the drama, where, in the more primitive days of Washington, all the great histrionic geniuses were wont to hold high court, may not be uninteresting:—

In the first place, the outside of the building has been painted a handsome brown or stone color, and the main entrance on C street, Pennsylvania and improved. On passing through the entrance, on one side of which is the ticket office, the visitor finds himself at the foot of two broad flights of stairs which lead up to the theatre proper. The hall has been so far as to be scarcely recognizable. Its prevailing coloring is white, but the walls are finished with imitation panneling, and the front of the boxes and gallery, also the ceiling, is frescoed. The lower part of the auditorium is divided into an orchestra and parquet, both of which are filled up with comfortable chairs, those in the orchestra having arms to them. The gallery, which runs around three sides of the house, has been arranged with tier upon tier of seats, which arise rapidly from the front, affording each spectator a clear and uninterrupted view of the stage. The boxes, of which there are four on each side, seat six persons, and are handsomely furnished and hung with heavy crimson curtains, looped up and drop curtain, which is the work of Harry Hunter, the scenic artist, is fresh, bright and tasteful, and great care has been exercised to secure adequate and perfect ventilation for the entire house, which, it is said, will seat over 1,400 persons with comfort. The dressing rooms are eighteen number, cosily furnished, and reached by a private entrance from Eleventh street, and by accessible from the stage by a private stairway. The entire ground floor has been fitted up as a bar and conversation room, which will be kept open from 7 A. M. until 12 P. M., and be under the personal supervision of Mr. Hughey Brennan, one of the proprietors. This apartment is finished in most lavish and elegant style, and in its centre there is to be a large fountain with a full length statue of Venus rising from the midst thereof. A large entrance has been opened through to the rear of it is one of the finest single plate mirrors in the country. Taken altogether, the entire establishment promises to be one of the handsomest in the country. The stock company, which opens on the 2d, is as follows:—Miss Marion Taylor, burlesque artist; Alice La Favre, vocalist and statue performer; Lala Delmar and Miss Ella Saunders, duetists and song and dance performer; Mlle. Annetti Galletti, premiere danseuse; Belle Celesta, C. E. Matthews and Johnny Manning, trapeze performers; James H. Hill, character change vocalist; Sam E. Sanford and Dick Parker, Ethiopian comedians; George S. Knight, Dutch comedian; George Herman, Irish comedian; Otto Burbank, jig dancer; Mackin and Wilson, double song and dance men; James Douglas, burlesque actor; James W. Wesley, pantomimist; Miller Bell, comic vocalist; Signor J. Cardella, maitre de ballet, and a full and complete corps de ballet, including fifteen coryphees. The officers of the theatre are L. R. Walker & Co., managers; S. S. Sanford, stage manager; J. Johns Hoff, treasurer; Prof. Fisher, leader of the orchestra; Harry Hunter, scenic artist; Harry Hussy, machinist, and S. Moxley, costumer.

AT THE METROPOLITAN VARIETY THEATRE, Washington, D. C., the new season opened on Monday, the 26th ult., in an auspicious manner, an immense audience being present, with unprecedented business each night during the week. In the minstrel scene, Jas. Porter, who had charge of the bones, and Charley Gardiner, who looked after the tambo, got off a couple of comic songs in good style, and Macy Roadcap and Josie Warner each sang a sentimental ballad in a pleasing manner. The olio opened with a fancy dance by Maria Eliater, and then J. F. Hill followed in an original trapeze act which was first class. After him came Zoyara in an Ethiopian medley, and a song and dance was given by Charley Gardiner, the original "Hop Light Loo" man, which deserved and received encores. A handsome little piece of femininity named Maggie Mortimer next did an Irish lilt, and she gave place to Josie Warner with a budget of songs, that were well selected and sung. Porter, Gardiner, Hill and Forrest then appeared in a funny burlesque on the Mace-O'Baldwin peace meeting; Emma Gordon was introduced in a Highland fling, and Macy Roadcap gave a song and dance that showed a marked and rapid improvement since her last appearance here. The remainder of the programme consisted of songs, dances and a negro sketch, and the whole was concluded with dance by the "Two Can Play at That Game," in which Porter, Hill and Maggie Mortimer appeared to advantage. No changes are announced. Our correspondent's report is dated Sept. 1st.

J. Z. LITTLE.
"WOMAN'S WILL,"
which has achieved a genuine success.
We have rarely heard such yells and screams of ecstatic delight from a Philadelphia auditory.—Phila., Pa., Press.
The scenes are well managed, and each act ends with such a combination of actions and events of danger threatened and danger avoided or averted, as sets the audience ablaze with excitement, and hoists the curtain again and again.—Phila., Pa., Age.
It is an exciting play, well calculated to please the admirers of intense melo-dramatic situations and rapid action.—Phila., Pa., Post.
All letters may be addressed to J. Z. LITTLE,
22-2t* Care of New York Clipper office.
